27. Marched, at 10 A. M., beyond Lavergne about two miles. Ordered to countermarch back to the rear, and left to support some troops building a bridge over

Stewart creek. Reached the position late in the night. Camped.

28. In camp at this same place.

29. Monday. Ordered to march down the creek. Joined the division. Marched toward Murfreesboro. Crossed the bridge and arrived on the pike in a half hour. Reached the battlefield, within a mile of the rebel breastworks, and bivouacked.

30. The whole army was aroused at 5 A. M. Lines were formed, batteries placed in position commanding roads and the cavalry pushed forward on the flanks. There was slight firing on the outpost lines. During the day heavy skirmish lines, covering the front of the whole army, advanced and pressed forward, engaging the enemy's outposts. Reconnaissances found the enemy in force across Stone river. The fire of the skirmishers increased rapidly, and the artillery along the front opened fire occasionally, but there was no serious engagement. Dark, at 5 P. M., when the firing ceased. The casualties were few, and camp-rumors circulated that there were indications that the rebels were abandoning their position at Murfreesboro, retreating southward. The whole army bivouacked in line of battle. The weather cold, raw and intensely disagreeable. There was firing on the outposts during the night but no artillery firing. The night passed quietly.

31. The whole army was aroused at 5 A. M. and ordered into line. Arms were stacked and breakfast was cooked behind the stacks. The men were ordered to fill their canteens and be in readiness to march at any moment. The lines in reserve joined their respective commands. Immediately after daylight the 3d Division was ordered to move to the left. The other two divisions of the corps to follow at proper intervals. The order of battle was for the 21st Army Corps to march to the left, crossing Stone's river; to advance until opposite and left of Murfreesboro, then by a turning movement to the right attack the enemy's right wing, double up his lines and push him on to his center. During this operation the center and right wing to remain in position until the turning movement on the left was executed, when the lines were to advance, attacking the enemy along his front. There was very little firing during the march to the left, and very little resistance by the enemy. When the position was reached from which the attack was to be made, the lines were formed, and strong skirmish lines pushed forward; heavy firing was heard, apparently on the right and rear of the Union lines, increasing every moment in intensity, and rapidly extending toward the left. In front of the left, facing the enemy's position in Murfreesboro there was no movement or action of any kind, not even a reply to the fire of the advancing skirmishes. At this time orders were received to countermarch by divisions and march rapidly to the right in the most expeditious manner possible. As soon as Stone's river was recrossed the brigades spread out, taking advantage of short cuts across fields to hurry forward. Where it was possible without interfering, or breaking up formations, the advance was made in double quick time. The distance to the right from Stone's river was fully three miles; such was the zeal of the troops that this distance was made very quickly, with the columns well closed up ready to form lines to move to the front. As the troops approached the right unmistakable signs of disaster became visible every moment. Artillery, ambulances, teams and groups of retreating soldiers flying in every direction to the rear. It then appeared, from what could be ascertained, that the right win

General A. D. McCook commanding, while eati breakfast, and while the artillery teams, unhitch and going to water, with no disposition to receive attack or resist an advance, was surprised by t enemy in strong force and driven to the rear in gre confusion, exposing the right flank of the army. T unexpected attack came with such suddenness a vigor that it was impossible to form lines to resi and the enemy penetrated the position, capturing large number of officers and men and much of t artillery, and driving the confused masses to the re with irresistible force. Surrounded by the debris McCook's corps streaming to the rear, Beatty's Brigade, 19th Ohio, 79th Indiana, 9th Kentucky, a 11th Kentucky reached a point where the railroad i tersecting the pike formed a triangle. Being the fir to arrive, the 3d Brigade was placed in position, whe
it was intended to form the right of the new lin
During this formation there was danger of the forr
ing line being swept away by the retreating troops McCook, and the lines had to be opened for the passage. As soon as the lines could be reformed, t pursuing enemy came in sight, debouching out the cedar woods. The front line of the 3d Brigad the 19th Ohio and 9th Kentucky, supported by t 79th Indiana and 11th Kentucky, in second lin opened fire upon the approaching enemy, firing vo ley after volley with such effect as not only to sto the advance, but bringing the enemy to a halt, stru gling in vain to advance out of the cedar woods, whic combat was vigorously continued until the ammunitio of the front line was nearly exhausted, when t second line was ordered forward to relieve it. Th front line opened ranks, and the second line passed the front, where, after firing a few volleys, it was ordered by General Rosencrans, who had been a spectator of the fight, to fix bayonets and drive back the enemy, promising support on the flanks. The advance was rapidly made, and prisoners were taken along the line, the enemy falling back to his original position. In the meantime, owing to a change of plan, the line was recalled and directed to a point on the right, where the Chicago Board of Trade Battery was in position on a slight elevation on a knoll, which became the center of the new line formed on the right of the center. Repeated charges were made upon this part of the line during the day, which were successfully beaten off by the infantry and artillery until night-fall, when the whole army reformed bivouacked in line of battle during the night. The night was bitter cold, and there was much suffering until the troops were allowed to kindle fires, when the army could cook its rations and the men warm themselves. There was very little firing during the night. The troops of both sides were willing to rest after the exhausting labors of the preceding day.

JANUARY, 1863.

1. Cold and gloomy. The 21st Army Corps was ordered to cross Stone's river and form on the left. Line of battle was formed, the artillery of the corps placed in position and strong skirmish lines pushed forward, but no advance ordered. During the day changes were made in the position, and the 1st and 2d Divisions of the corps were withdrawn across Stone's river to make closer connection with the left center. There was only slight skirmishing, with occasional cannon shots during the day, as the armies confronted each other. There was no serious movement on either side. Ammunition was replenished and rations were issued. There was an alarm toward midnight, and lines were promptly formed. It was ascertained that the alarm was false, and the troops returned to their bivouacs.

2. Cold, cloudy and windy. Quiet all along the lines of both armies. After breakfast orders were issued for rigid inspection, and to put everything in serviceable condition. The whole forenoon passed away without any change of position of the 3d Division except that the 79th Indiana about noon was taken from its position and moved forward to fill a gap in the front line between the brigades of Fife and Price. No orders were given to Colonel Knefler of any kind, nor was he ordered to report for orders to either of the brigade commanders of the front line of the division. The afternoon until 3 o'clock passed without any other change of position or change in the formation of the 3d Division. There was slight firing occasionally on the right but no movement of a serious nature. At 3 o'clock the batteries of the 3d Division, one after another, were withdrawn from their positions and moved back across Stone's river to the rear and the division remained apparently dangerously exposed on both flanks, without artillery. It remained very quiet until about 4 o'clock when indications of a movement by the enemy forming in front became visible. The skirmishers in front opened fire, which gradually extended along the whole front, increasing rapidly in violence. The skirmishers began falling back on their lines and reported the advance of a large column of the enemy, seven lines deep and supported by many batteries. The skirmishers attempted to retard the enemy's advance, but were rapidly pressed back by the front line of the advancing column, composed of the whole Breckenridge corps and its artillery. When the front became cleared of the skirmishers the whole 3d Division opened fire upon the enemy, but after a few well directed volleys, which inflicted severe loss upon the front line, the rebels brought the second line to the front which rapidly forced the 3d Division into retreat to Stone's river, pursued by overwhelming numbers of the enemy. As the 3d Division descended the banks of the stream and was crossing it, thus uncovering the pursuing enemy, a fearful discharge of many batteries, massed on the high bank commanding the entire position of the 3d Division and its line of retreat, swept the front clear of the pursuing enemy, who in turn fell back rapidly, this time pursued by the 3d Division under cover of the artillery on the bluffs and a heavy column of infantry on the right which had remained concealed until this time—Negley's Division. The enemy quickly rallied and the whole line retreated again to the banks of Stone's river pursued by the enemy whose advance was again stopped by the concentrated fire of the massed artillery and pursued again to the original position of attack. This maneuver was repeated the third time, when the whole line, reinforced by heavy bodies of infantry on the right and left, and batteries of artillery, drove the enemy from the field, who retreated into his defensive works on the right of Murfreesboro. When darkness came and the fight ceased, the 3d Division occupied about the same threatening position from which it was recalled to the right on the morning of the 31st of December, 1862.

3. Up early and in line. Heavy cannonading and musketry is heard on the right.

4. Up early. Heavy rains. Mud is very deep in camp. It is rumored that the rebels have evacuated Murfreesboro and that the Union troops are m into the town. The report is confirmed at ni casioning great rejoicing. Missing men are re to the regiment. The loss to the regiment i killed, wounded and missing.

5. Up early and ready for duty. The bat indicates a great loss of life. Will probably nine or ten thousand on Union side in killed, wo and missing. Trees twelve inches in diameter off in places, where fighting was hot. Horses a ing around killed in every possible manner. I busy burying the dead. Rained hard all night.

6. Up early. A detail is made from the regim guard a bridge in process of construction across river. Weather pleasant, but cold.

7. Up early. Marched at 6 A. M. toward Mur boro. Marched about two miles and arrived town. Marched through the lower part of town, out on the Lebanon pike about two miles and we camp in a wood near the road on rebel General Ma place, Murfreesboro. Presents a very desolat pearance now, all business houses being closed many private houses turned into hospitals.

8. Wagons came up to-day with our camp equi and tents are put up. Volunteer surgeons came Indianapolis, to attend on the wounded. The wea is damp and disagreeable. Men are recovering their fatigue.

9. Up early. Men are taking it easy, resting writing home.

10. In camp. Men are cleaning up their cloth first time in two weeks they have had an opportun

11. In camp. Lieutenant Howe, of Company detailed to command Company "E," the captain first lieutenant being wounded in the battle of Stone river. The second lieutenant is in hospital at Nashville.

12. In camp. Men are taking time easy and are ready for active duty.

13. Up early. Laid off camp and policed quarters. Regiment camped in a convenient and beautiful location; water and wood convenient; easily drained; guards are stationed about the camp, which is quiet and lonesome. It is observed that the battle had the effect of increasing sociability and good feeling among the men and officers.

14. Up at reveille. Camp guards are relieved on account of very hard rain. At 3 P. M. it rained harder than any time since the regiment marched into Tennessee; a dismal sleet followed in the morning. Several ladies came from Indianapolis as volunteer nurses.

15. Up at reveille. Had roll-call. It is very cold to-day, so cold it is almost impossible to keep warm. The ladies can not have a good opinion of soldiering, taking the weather as a specimen. Colonel Knefler does not approve of the presence of ladies in camp.

16. Reveille. Roll-call. The regiment detailed for picket. Marched out to the line. Company "E" is stationed at an elegant house, formerly occupied by a man now in the rebel army. The house was at one time luxuriously furnished. It is now stripped of everything, such as books, furniture, pictures, etc.; nothing is left but the bare walls.

17. Relieved from picket duty at 2 P. M. Marched to camp. The weather still very cold.

18. Reveille. Roll called. The men are building fire-places in their tents. The bricks were appropriated from some brick kilns near by camp, the property of some rebel.

19. Up at reveille. Roll-call at 5 P. M. Men are busy completing chimneys in tents and making themselves comfortable generally. Preparing to take things easy.

20. Reveille at 5 A. M. Roll called. Camp guards stationed this morning. Raining. Very muddy.

21. Reveille at 5 A. M. and roll-call. Ordinary routine duties of camp resumed, policing and company drills as in former times. Men do not take much interest in company drills. Weather pleasant, but muddy.

22. Reveille at 5 A. M. and roll called. Mail very irregular, owing to a break on the L. & N. R. R. Cloudy and looks like rain. In Tennessee at this season it rains on an average every other day.

23. Reveille at 5 A. M. Roll called. Rumors of good news from the east. Grand victory by General Burnside reported.

24. Reveille at 5 A. M. Roll called. Camp guard is taken off. Regiment is detailed for picket and marched out to the line. The picket line is extended to the identical ground occupied by the rebels during the battle of Stone river. Broken guns, pieces of shells, etc., are laying around in abundance. Rained nearly all night.

25. Relieved at 2 P. M. Marched to camp. Weather damp and disagreeable. Men are anxious to go home. Desertions are reported quite frequent all over the army. Major Perry M. Blankenship resigned.

26. Reveille at 5 A. M. and roll called. Company drills and rest is all the men have to do. The sad diminution of the regiment does not tend to create cheerfulness. The hospitals are crowded with men who have succumbed to hardships, greatly reducing the effective strength of the army.

27. Reveille at 5 A. M. Roll called. The regiment is detailed for picket. Marched out to the line. The reason that the regiment is detailed for picket duty so often is on account of most of the division working on the fortifications around Murfreesboro.

28. Relieved at 2 P. M. and marched to camp.

29. Reveille at 5 A. M. Roll called. All quiet in camp.

30. Reveille at 5 A. M. Roll called. The regiment is detailed for picket. Marched out to the line. All quiet on the line. First Lieutenant John R. Cotton, "A" company, resigned.

31. Relieved at 1 P. M. Marched to camp. Weather is mild. Roads are very muddy and almost impassable. There is much sickness in camp. Many men are despondent and homesick. James A. Harris appointed and mustered in as captain of "A" company.

FEBRUARY, 1863.

1. Ordered in line and marched about a mile and worked on a fort. The earthwork is sixteen feet thick and six feet high. The ditch in front is twelve feet wide and six feet deep.

2. In camp. Very cold. Had dress parade.

3. In camp. Very cold. Had dress parade.

4. In camp. Very cold. Had dress parade. Snowing.

5. In camp. Very cold. Had dress parade. Snowing. Sergeant Geo. G. Earl, of "A" company, mustered as 2d lieutenant of "A" company.

6. Up at 3 P. M. Ordered foraging. Started at daylight, on Lebanon pike, to Stone river. Not being able to cross, turned to the left and marched two miles to a field. Pickets were stationed while the teams were being loaded. Marched back to camp, arriving at 4 P. M.

7. In camp. Ordered to be ready to march with three days' rations at 5 : 30 P. M. Cannonading is heard in the distance. Second Lieutenant Wm. S. Cardell, "C" company, promoted 1st lieutenant "C" company. Sergeant Edwin M. Byrkit mustered as 2d lieutenant of "C" company. Sergeant Isaac W. Stubbs, of "F" company, promoted 1st lieutenant of "F" company and mustered. Captain Manker, of "B" company, mustered in as surgeon of the regiment.

8. Up at 4 P. M. A detachment of the regiment marched to Murfreesboro. Got in wagons and started for Nashville. Marched to the court-house. Got supper there and slept in a very large room. Richard E. Perrott, of "F" company, appointed and mustered as 2d lieutenant of "F" company.

9. Detachment in Nashville while the teams were being loaded.

10. Up at 3 A. M. Detachment started for Murfreesboro with teams. The roads very bad. The teams strung out along the pike. Very muddy and badly cut up. Halted at Lavergne for the night.

11. Detachment up at daylight. Marched a short distance. Halted a long time, waiting for pontoon bridges. Waited until dark. Being out of rations, the colonel ordered the adjutant to draw rations of sugar, coffee, pork and crackers. Bivouacked.

12. In marching order at 2 A. M. Started to march at 4 A. M. Marched at quick time to the river. Crossed on a flat boat. Got to camp at 12 M.

13. In camp resting. Routine duties. No drills.

14. Regiment on picket. Raining. A forage train is attacked by the rebels, who are repulsed.

15. Relieved from picket. In camp. Called up at 10 P. M. and formed in line. Ordered to quarters and slept on arms.

16. Ordered to get ready for inspection. Raining.

17. Up at daylight. Had dress parade in the evening. Raining.

18. Regiment on picket. Marched three miles to the picket line. The line was moved out. Ordered to have no fires. Movement of rebels expected.

19. Relieved at 11 A. M. Marched to camp. Drew eight days' rations. Dress parade.

20. Policed quarters. Ordered to get ready for inspection. Dress parade in the evening.

21. Ordered on picket.

22. Relieved from picket. Marched to camp. Dress parade in the afternoon. Salute is fired, being Washington's birthday.

23. In camp. Drilled. Dress parade. Ordered to be ready to go foraging at 6 A. M.

24. Up at 5. Ready to march at 6 A. M. Marched at 7 A. M. to Stone river; down the river seven miles to a large corn field. Loaded up. Marched back to camp. Very muddy and hard marching.

25. In camp. Rain all day. No drills or dress parade. All in quarters.

26. In camp. Rain until nearly 5 P. M. Dress parade. Orders read. Reveille every morning at 5 A. M. In line of battle at 5:15 A. M. Roll called and stand to arms until daylight. Until further orders, details to be made for picket from each company.

27. Reveille 5 A. M. In line until daylight. Company drills.

28. Reveille 5 A. M. In line until daylight. Company drills.
