What J.F.K means to me

Nathan Decarvalho
May 18
2016

JFK was the 35th president of the United states of America. He did so many things for our country and helped stop segregation. That's why I think everybody in the United States of America still remembers him.

One reason is JFK didn't want people to be juged by the skin color. He talked to Martin Luther King Jr. about ways to stop it.

Another reason is he made a speech so people could understand the diffrence of being "negro", black, and white.

Finally he helped stop segregation. He sent federal marshalls to the Univesity of Alabama so a black girl could go to school safely. The Governor of Alabama said "segregation today, segregation tomorrow, segregation forever." The Governor thought segregation was good but JFK disagreed.

I think you will remember this moment in JFK's life I chose to write about this part of his life because I would not be in Devotion School if JFK never stopped segregation.