In 1917 a boy was born who grew up to be a very courageous man. The mans name was John F Kennedy. John believed he could change our country.

When John F Kennedy was in world war II with his crew a Japanese ship cut their ship in half! The ship was named PT109. Two men died and one was badly injured In fact the injured man could not swim to safety! John F. Kennedy was courageous and he took the man's life jacket strap and put it in his mouth!

He swam for 5 hours pulling the injured man. Finally they found an Island there was no way to get help.

Some natives came John and then natives could not speak the same language then John had an idea. He carved a message on a coconut. The natives gave the coconut to the naval base and the people came to rescue the crew.

This helped John F. Kennedy become the president because it showed that he was very courageous and smart. It showed us that even if something is hard, you should do it.

J.F.K. and I are alike because we are both brave, courageous and determined. I am determined because

I always try my best in swimming lessons to pass to the next level and, in my piano lessons, J.F.K taught me that you should always keep trying and never give up.
