Not to be impaired by her diabetes, Mrs. Walker eventually used a traditional style wheelchair in public. At home, she commissioned a "rolling chair" made of a comfortable armchair on a four-wheeled base with a footrest and detachable desktop. Determined to maintain her countless leadership positions, Mrs. Walker continued to write letters, sign checks, and draft speeches from the comfort of her portable office.