“Holiday in the National Parks” Celebrated at the White House Cedar Creek and Belle Grove NHP Ornament Displayed on the Official White House Christmas Tree

(Middletown, VA) – The Cedar Creek and Belle Grove National Historical Park (NHP) ornament is prominently displayed on this year’s official White House Christmas Tree. The tree is the centerpiece of elaborate decorations celebrating the theme of “Holiday in the National Parks.”

“It is an amazing honor for the National Park Service to be selected as the theme for the White House holiday decorations by the President and Mrs. Bush,” said National Park Service Director Mary A. Bomar. “Mrs. Bush is the best champion for our national parks, and the beautiful decorations in each state room showcase the natural and historical treasures found in parks throughout the country.”

The tree, located in the Blue Room, is adorned with handmade ornaments representing the country’s 391 National Park Service sites. “Each ornament on the magnificent 18-foot Fraser fir was designed by an artist selected by the park,” said Bomar. “The ornaments tell the stories of our parks, just as our parks tell the stories of our nation.”

The Cedar Creek and Belle Grove NHP ornament was made by Shenandoah Valley artist and author Christine Andreae. The ornament, pictured here, depicts landscapes and themes from the park, including early settlement of the Valley, the Civil War, rare plant and animal species, and great natural beauty. Andreae and her architect husband Fred attended a White House reception hosted by First Lady Laura Bush on November 28 in honor of the artists who prepared the many ornaments. “We are thrilled that Christine prepared this beautiful ornament for the White House Christmas tree. Her work captures the character defining features of both the park and the Shenandoah Valley,” said Cedar Creek and Belle Grove NHP Superintendent Diann Jacox.

The holiday displays incorporate the wide variety of natural, cultural, and recreational features preserved by the National Park Service. Models of icons such as the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse and the Statue of Liberty share space with paintings of scenic vistas from Grand Canyon, Zion, and Rocky Mountain National Parks. Holiday garlands intertwined with park objects including seashells, pine cones, and gold aspen leaves add to each room’s festive feel.

A highlight of the decorations is a scaled-down, but architecturally accurate, gingerbread reproduction of the south view of the White House, a unit of the National Park Service. The edible masterpiece includes Bush family pets Barney, Miss Beazley, and Willie frolicking on the lawn with moose, elk, raccoons, and other animals found in national parks.

“National Parks commemorate the people, places, and events that define the American experience,” said Secretary of the Interior Dirk Kempthorne. “I am so appreciative of President Bush’s efforts to recognize the important role of national parks in American society. Our country will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the National Park Service in 2016 and the President has been instrumental in establishing the National Park Centennial Initiative to prepare the parks for the next century.”
