Join your colleagues to explore:

- How to use sources to support historic inquiry
- How selected sources influence our impressions of historic events
- How place-based learning enhances student understanding of content standards

Enjoy spectacular national and state park lands during three days of dynamic exchange about justice and injustice in the American Experience.

Infuse more inquiry in your classroom! This workshop offers you a practical approach in using historic and community sources to provoke students to pose meaningful questions, apply critical thinking skills, and build historic interpretations.

Award of $150 stipend
