From the Superintendent

We invite you to attend and participate in Lincoln Home National Historic Site's February 11 to 15, 2009 Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial celebration of his birth. There will be special living history and park ranger guided tours and programs in various locations throughout the park; children's story telling sessions with Abraham Lincoln and authors of children's books on Lincoln; the George L. Painter Lincoln scholar lectures; a workshop on Lincoln and leadership; a discussion between Abraham Lincoln, Frederick Douglass, Harriet Tubman, and Martin Luther King, Jr.; music presentations of the Lincoln-era; and a program entitled "Abraham Lincoln: A Biography in Words and Music." You will also have an opportunity to view the park's new 26 minute, high definition, surround sound, orientation film in the Visitor Center theatre.

All of the above programs and activities are free, so please accept our invitation to celebrate Mr. Lincoln's 200th birthday party with the staff and volunteers at Lincoln Home NHS.

Lincoln Home, for the Holidays

Christmas in the time of Abraham Lincoln was a lot different than it is for us today. The idea of Santa Claus did not become popular until drawings of the jolly old elf appeared in Harper's Weekly in the 1870s and 1880s.

The Christmas tree first appeared in print in Godey's Lady Book, 1850. But even so, traditional trees were different in this time. Christmas trees were first brought to the United States by German immigrants, and were usually tabletop trees. Because most of the firs here in the United States were larger, the Christmas tree became the floor to ceiling versions seen today. We do not know if the Lincolns had a tree in their home, but the Springfield Episcopal Church and the First Presbyterian Church had Christmas trees in their buildings. The Lincolns probably visited these churches and saw the trees illuminated by many candles.

In 1860, there were no lights on the houses, no reindeer on the roofs, and no elves in the front yards. What decorations they had were not put up until Christmas Eve night. Willie and Tad, Mr. Lincoln's two youngest boys, used their mother's stockings for gifts, since they were larger and held more toys, books, popcorn balls, and candy. The boy's list may have also included firecrackers and horns, which were great for noisemaking and popular at the time.

Typical gifts for boys in 1860: Books, carved wooden animals toys, gun powder firecrackers, hoops, and a stocking to hang above the fireplace.

Meals during the holiday season consisted of foods like chicken, ham, mashed potatoes, oranges and cloves, roast beef, and pickles.

Museum Matters

Lincoln Home National Historic Site's newest exhibit, Teaching with Museum Collections: Lincoln Home is available on the internet at <http://www.nps.gov/history/museum/exhibits/liho/>. It is the goal of the National Park Service's Museum Management Program to have web-based exhibits for all 391 parks.

The Lincoln Home exhibit features photographs of over 200 artifacts from the collection, and a virtual tour of the Lincoln Home. The Curatorial staff began selecting themes and artifacts in 2005. These themes cover the Lincoln Home itself, Mary & the boys, Lawyer to President (his legal and political careers,) funeral, return to Springfield, and Memorabilia. In February 2006, a professional photographer took high-resolution pictures while the staff scanned an additional 50-60 prints, drawings, and papers that fit one or more of the themes. In the summer of 2006, a workshop was held with twelve local teachers for the purpose of creating lesson plans using the images of the artifacts as the main source of information. The teachers worked in small groups to decide what grade level they wanted to write for and what the activities would be. The plans also had to meet National Curriculum standards.

Following the workshop, the Curator, with help from the Curatorial staff, Historian, and Interpreters wrote up labels for the themes and individual artifacts, creating over 200 labels by the time it was all finished! Then the Museum Management office created a fun, interactive and easy to use web exhibit.

The exhibit went online in September 2008.

The Giving Season

If you're looking for the perfect gift for any season, the Lincoln Home Museum Shop is a great place to look! The souvenirs found in our store range from unique items found only at our site, to classic favorites like the Lincoln Logs set. With a wide variety to choose from, the Museum Shop is a great way to share memories and give thoughtful gifts. It's also a way to support your National Parks! Eastern National has donated over $89 million to the National Park Service since 1947, providing parks around the nation with a chance to fund educational programs, public events, and other such services for national park visitors.

Editor's Note

Time keeps flying by, and now is the snow! The Lincoln neighborhood is gorgeous when covered in snow and decorated with balsam. Winter is a great time to stop by and see the home of our 16th president.

In addition to the natural beauty of the snow laden homes, this year is an exceptional time to plan a trip to the Lincoln Home. There will be many programs and events taking place in February for the Bicentennial and throughout the whole year!

As always, we're open everyday of the year from 8:30-5:00, with the exception of Thanksgiving Day, December 25, and January 1! We hope to see you and yours soon!

Mission Statement

The mission of the National Park Service at Lincoln Home National Historic Site is to conserve unimpaired, for the enjoyment, education and inspiration of present and future generations, the Lincoln Home and its associated cultural resources and values that were critical to the emergence of Abraham Lincoln as both a national leader and international symbol of democracy.

This mission is rooted in and evolves from the park's legislative mandate found in the Act of Congress of August 18, 1971 (85 Stat. 347) as amended.

October 15-18, 2009: Lincoln Colloquium

The Lincoln Colloquium is a special event held every year at different locations throughout the Midwest. From October 15-18, 2009, the Colloquium comes to Lincoln Home National Historic Site.

This year the program focuses on the environment of the 1800s. The Nature of Lincoln: How the Environment Shaped Lincoln and how Lincoln's Generation shaped the Environment promises to be an interesting discussion as Lincoln's childhood on the rugged frontier is analyzed, as well as dealing with weather and man's determination to master his surroundings. Take a closer look at how Lincoln and his generation affected, and were effected by the world around them. The Colloquium is presented in partnership with the Lincoln Home National Historic Site, University of Illinois at Springfield, Illinois State Museum, and Eastern National, and many others. For more information, contact the Lincoln Home National Historic Site at 217-391-3241.
