Name _____

Welcome to Appomattox Court House National Historical Park, a unit of the National Park Service. We are glad you decided to visit us today and hope that you enjoy your tour of the park.

Our Junior Ranger Program is for very special people like you. We need you to help us take care of our national parks and encourage other people to take care of them, too. The parks belong to all of us, and we want you to be able to bring your families here someday.

Start your adventure to become a Junior Ranger by going through the museum exhibits on both floors of the visitor center. Be sure to watch the film presentation because it will help with some of the questions. As you tour the village keep your booklet with you. You never know when you might find an answer. To earn your badge you must complete the activities on pages 1, 2, and 3. After completing the first three pages you must complete the required number of activities for your age group as listed below.

These pages must be completed

Ages 6-9, 4 activities required

Ages 10-13, 5 activities required

You may substitute a living history program or Ranger Talk for one activity.

Program: _____

Ranger or Living Historian signature: _____

If you need any assistance you can ask your parents or a park ranger to help you. When you have finished, take your booklet to a ranger in the visitor center.

The National Park Service

You must complete this page

In 2016, the National Park Service, a branch of the federal government that is responsible for protecting and caring for over 400 parks, celebrated its 100th anniversary.

The NPS protects and cares for the vegetation, wildlife, scenery, historical, and archaeological treasures within those properties.

The arrowhead is the emblem of the National Park Service. The symbols on it represent natural and historical resources that the NPS preserves and protects.

Draw a line from the symbol to what it represents.

All vegetation

Land formations, scenery, and recreation

All wildlife

Clean water and recreation

Historical and archeological treasures

True False

Did You Know?

On August 25, 1916 President Woodrow Wilson approved the NPS Organic Act, legislation establishing the National Park Service as part of the Department of the Interior.

Battle Flags

When the Confederate soldiers surrendered here at Appomattox Court House, they gave up not only their weapons but also their battle flags. These flags were often made specifically for the regiment by local seamstresses. As you can see by the flags in the museum, battle flags frequently used symbols to represent pride for the soldiers' home towns and for their regiment. Use your own symbols to create a battle flag design for your home town.

Living History

Complete this page if there are living historians in the park.

Here at Appomattox Court House National Historical Park living historians portray actual people who lived in this village in 1865. They are here to help you understand how different people reacted to the surrender.

Remember that for our living historians it is today's date, but the year is 1865 (ex. June 22, 1865 if it is June 22). Talk to one of them to find the answers to the following questions and find out what they experienced in April 1865.

1. Who are you talking to?

2. Did they support the Union or the Confederacy?

3. What was one experience they had during the Civil War before April 1865?

4. What was their experience during the surrender?

Matching Civil War Flags

Flags were important during the Civil War, just as they are today, to express patriotism and unity. On the battlefield they identified which side you were fighting for. The Confederates had some problems creating a national flag because the designers were often not thinking of the battlefield when they created the flag. How the flag could be seen on the battlefield was motivation to change the first two designs flown as national flags by the Confederacy. In addition to a national flag, the Confederacy also had a battle flag that was easy to recognize on the battlefield.

Match the flags names below to their picture to see what each flag is.

Old Glory

Confederate First National (Stars & Bars)

Confederate Second National (Stainless Banner)

Confederate Third National

Confederate Battle Flag

Parole Passes

Besides allowing a Confederate soldier’s safe passage home, name 2 other things a soldier could receive by showing his parole pass to Federal authorities.

- 1 _____
- 2 _____

Attend a printing demonstration and have the ranger sign below. If no demonstration is offered, answer the following questions. (Hint: You can find the answers at the Chamberlain-Gordon Salute Site)

Ranger Signature: _____

1. On which day did General Grant agree to issue the Confederate soldiers parole passes?

2. During the Confederate infantry surrender on April 12, 1865, General Joshua L. Chamberlain issued an order to “Shoulder Arms.” What does this mean?

The Sweeneys and the Banjo

Local resident, Joel Sweeney, created the five string banjo from an African instrument called the banjar. He also helped to popularize the banjo by touring around the United States and Europe, even playing for the Queen of England. Although Joel died in 1860, his younger brother Sam, who also played the banjo, was recruited to be General J.E.B. Stuart's personal musician during the Civil War. Connect the dots to identify this instrument.

USCTs

The answers for these questions will be found in the USCT display located to the rear of the McLean House Kitchen.

1. What do the letters USCT stand for?
