Entrance Fees Waived to Celebrate National Public Lands Day at Assateague Island National Seashore

Berlin, Maryland – Superintendent Trish Kicklighter today announced that in recognition of National Public Lands Day, the entrance fee will be waived for all visitors to Assateague Island National Seashore on Saturday September 25, 2010. The fee waiver applies at both the Maryland and Virginia districts of the National Seashore.

“This is a wonderful opportunity to enjoy the National Seashore at a great time of the year,” said Kicklighter. “Fall flowers are blooming, the weather is perfect, and the Island is less crowded than during the busy summer season”.

National Public Lands Day is an annual event celebrating service and recreation at more than 1,600 parks, refuges, and other public lands throughout the nation. Visitors to Assateague and other areas are encouraged to help out during their stay by volunteering in public service projects. Stop by the Maryland District Ranger Station to see how you can participate.
