Bryce Canyon National Park's Annual Pass: A Great Deal for Local Residents and Repeat Visitors

Like many national parks across the country, Bryce Canyon participates in the America the Beautiful National Parks and Federal Recreational Lands Pass program which offers a variety of passes that provide access to national parks, forests, and wildlife refuges across the country.

What many visitors to Bryce Canyon don't realize, however, is that the park also offers a park-specific Annual Pass that waives entrance fees to Bryce Canyon National Park for 12 months from the date of purchase. At $35, the Bryce Canyon Annual Pass is a bargain for local residents and others who visit Bryce Canyon several times a year.

The National Park Service recently raised its entrance and amenity fees at many parks throughout the country. Bryce Canyon's new entrance fees are: $30 per single, private, non-commercial vehicle; $25 per motorcycle; and $15 per bicyclist or pedestrian. Each of these entrance permits is valid for seven days' admission to Bryce Canyon National Park.

"Bryce Canyon's entrance fees support a wide range of projects that improve the park and visitor experiences," says Bryce Canyon National Park Superintendent, Lisa Eckert. "Funds have been used to rehabilitate trails, develop and install new exhibits in our visitor center, and operate the park's shuttle system, to name but a few. As we prepare to celebrate the National Park Service's centennial in 2016, entrance fees will continue to provide funding for infrastructure improvements so that visitors can enjoy the beauty and history that lives in our national parks."

The Bryce Canyon Annual Pass is one of many passes available for purchase (or in some cases, at no cost) through the America the Beautiful National Parks and Federal Recreational Lands Pass program:
