The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

HISTORY

Records of the Ruin Stabilization Unit, 1933-1976 (with gaps)

In 1937 Frank Pinkley, Superintendent of the former NPS Southwestern National Monuments, organized a Mobile Ruins Stabilization Unit (Mobile Unit) with a field station in Chaco Canyon National Monument. The unit's mission was to stabilize and repair the large number of sites in the southwest that were rapidly deteriorating. The unit was set up as a program of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), with a crew of 25 Indian CCC enrollees. The unit was designed to move among the 14 southwestern archaeological and historical monuments, providing emergency and maintenance stabilization. The Mobile Unit was disbanded for a time during World War II, then reactivated in 1946. Employees were primarily drawn from the surrounding Navajo reservation, and second and third generation workers spent their careers on a WAE (when actually employed) basis.

Early work was concentrated at Chaco Canyon and Aztec Ruin. Standardized record sheets were created in 1937 and maintained throughout the unit's existence. These forms, together with photographs showing the work done at each site, created stabilization records for each room that was treated. Photographs, recorded observations, experiments, special reports, and job unit reports were created over the years. As work became standardized and techniques improved upon, work expanded to stabilization at other monuments and parks. The Mobile Unit formed the intellectual and empirical basis for NPS preservation method and theory.

In 1937 Gordon Vivian became supervisor of the NPS Indian CCC Mobile Unit. After World War II, Vivian returned to head the Mobile Unit from 1947-1958, stationed in Chaco Canyon. By 1956, the Mobile Unit has been renamed the Ruin Stabilization Unit (RSU), managed out of the Southwest Archaeological Center (SWAC) at Globe, AZ. In 1958, he became Supervisory Archeologist for the SWAC, but continued to oversee RSU work. Vivian died of leukemia on April 29, 1966 in Globe, Arizona. When the support office in Globe was moved to Tucson, the RSU program went with it. Until 1976, work at Chaco Canyon was carried out by the RSU program under the auspices of the Division of Cultural Properties Conservation of the Western Archaeological and Conservation Center (WACC) in Tucson. However, by 1970 park preservation staff began to take a more active role in managing the stabilization program at Chaco. Although WACC stabilization staff continued to work in Chaco during the 1970s, 1970 is considered the beginning of the park preservation program.
