COPYRIGHT AND RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

HISTORY

MARSHALL CLINARD was a UNM Chaco Field School student in 1931, when he was 19. He spent the entire summer there, the first 6 weeks earning college credit in archeology with the University of New Mexico and School of American Research. The courses were under the direction of Edgar Hewett.

At the end of the formal field school season, many of the students left, but Marshall was kept on for an additional four weeks during which he and several other students continued to excavate at Chetro Ketl. Work by Clinard included supervision of Navajo workmen as they excavated rooms in Chetro Ketl; he also assisted with removal of material from the kiva by constructing a tripod and bucket system. He did not keep field notes for these last four weeks; presumably Paul Reiter kept those notes.

Gus Griffith ran the Lodge, where the students had their meals. Patsy, Gus' daughter, and Marshall spent considerable amounts of free time together riding two palominos that her family owned. Patsy was about 16 years of age and because the family had lived at Zuni, as well as in Chaco, Patsy was fluent in both Zuni and Navajo. Through her, Marshall was able to communicate with the Navajo and ask questions about their culture, with which he was fascinated.

Marshall's photograph album is a compilation of his and Janet Woods' pictures from 1931.

Marshall had become good friends with Janet Woods during both the Jemez field school in 1930 and the Chaco field school in 1931; thus, the inclusion of her photographs in his album. In addition, he obtained several additional photographs from the NPS facility in Tucson.

Although Marshall had intended to obtain his Ph.D. in Anthropology, funding during the depression was limited. Although promised full support for his studies in anthropology, that did not happen; his fellowship was rescinded due to lack of money. He was able to continue his doctoral work in sociology and became a specialist in criminal behavior. At one time, he had been asked by the U.S. Dept. of Justice to examine corporate crime and the publication that resulted, "Corporate Crime," is the foremost publication in its field. He also maintained his interest and taught classes in anthropology. He often attended functions in Santa Fe, e.g., at the School of American Research.

As part of her project to document the Chaco Field Schools, Joan Mathien interviewed Marshall Clinard on December 12, 2006, and scanned the images in the photo album. After Dr. Clinard died on May 30, 2010, his widow offered to donate this material.

History: These photos come from Marshall B. Clinard's photo album; many appear in other Chaco Field School 1931 collections as field school students often made copies of their photographs to share with fellow students.

The majority of the photos are from the summer of 1931; several are from Jemez excavations in the summer of 1930. The photographers, unless otherwise specified, were Clinard and Janet Woods. The general pattern is that Clinard took the larger photos, while Woods took the smaller photos.

Most of the photos are in good shape, and only a few have torn corners.

Scope: PHOTOGRAPHS.

SCANNED IMAGES LOCATED IN P:

Summary Notes:

Collection/Series: 0055/003
Series Title: SERIES III: NOTES

Accession: CHCU-00844 Catalog Nbr: CHCU 107534

History: Marshall B. Clinard also donated a 3pg handwritten document entitled "Memories of Chaco Canyon 1931." It is written in fragmented sentences, seemingly most useful for invoking his own memories regarding his experiences at the Chaco Field School, 1931. Clinard mentions several site-names, but mostly references experiences with other members of the field school and workers at Chaco Canyon. He writes about the "squaw dance" that coincided with the July 4 Rodeo at Pueblo Bonito.
