Creekside Towers Trail begins at Bath Rock Parking Area. The trail’s gentle grade (122 feet relative elevation) is suitable for families with children. Outstanding scenery, sculpted granite pinnacles, and a diversity of plants and animals await you on this 1.2-mile round-trip walk. In spring and early summer, a small cascading waterfall is encountered. Keep a look out for secret windows, arches, and tafoni (honeycomb) weathering as well.

Orientation signs and maps are strategically located at trail intersections to help you find the route. If you become disoriented, remember that walking uphill will bring you to City of Rocks Road and back to the trailhead. Trail use is restricted to foot-traffic only, no bicycles or horses. Pets must be leashed at all times. Small children should be attended along the trail as some areas lead to cliffs. Climbers may be encountered at Creekside Towers. Provide a safe distance between you and climbing ropes and equipment. Help the rangers protect resources by staying on the trail in high-use areas. The trail map is on the reverse side.
