Have you ever wondered about that arrowhead you see on signs around Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore?

That's the emblem of the National Park Service.

Each part of the emblem symbolizes something the National Park Service was created to protect.

The arrowhead shape represents human culture.

CULTURE: The Sleeping Bear Dunes area used to be home to the Ottawa and Chippewa tribes, then logging operations, farming, and a U.S. Life-saving station.

Empire Lumber Co. operations - Loadings Logs on Edmond Buckley East Side 1916

The sequoia tree represents all trees and other plants.

PLANTS: The Lakeshore is home to special plants such as the threatened Pitcher's Thistle and ancient cedar trees.

The mountain represents land formations, scenery, and recreational opportunities.

LANDFORMS: The Lakeshore protects the dunes and bluffs for everyone to enjoy.

The bison represents all wildlife.

Sleeping Bear Dunes is home to many species of animals, including the endangered piping plover, beaver, red fox, and Caspian Tern.

The lake represents clean water and recreational opportunities.

Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore has beautiful rivers for kayaking and Lake Michigan beaches for swimming.

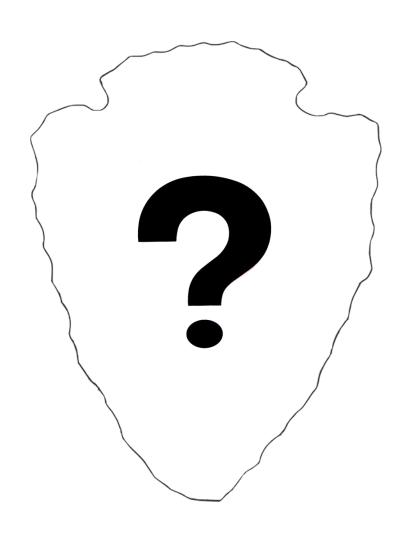

The National Park Service was founded in 1916 to protect and preserve all these things for the enjoyment of everyone.

Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore was officially dedicated in 1970.

POP QUIZ!

Can you list all the symbols on the National Park Service emblem and tell what each one represents?