

Checklist of Birds

Crater Lake National Park is comprised of 183,224 acres of mountains, peaks, evergreen forests, and lake. Elevations range from 4000 feet along the borders of the park to 8,929 feet at Mount Scott. These elevations offer diverse habitats, including ponderosa pine forest in the southern end of the park; mixed pine, fir, and hemlock forest in the 5,000 to 7,500-foot range; and sub-alpine environments including whitebark pine above 7,000 feet. Such a diversity of habitats presents the birder with many opportunities to observe bird life.

Abundance:

C Common - likely to see
LC Locally Common - likely in proper habitat
U Uncommon - possible to see in proper habitat
R Rare - unlikely to see even in proper habitat
