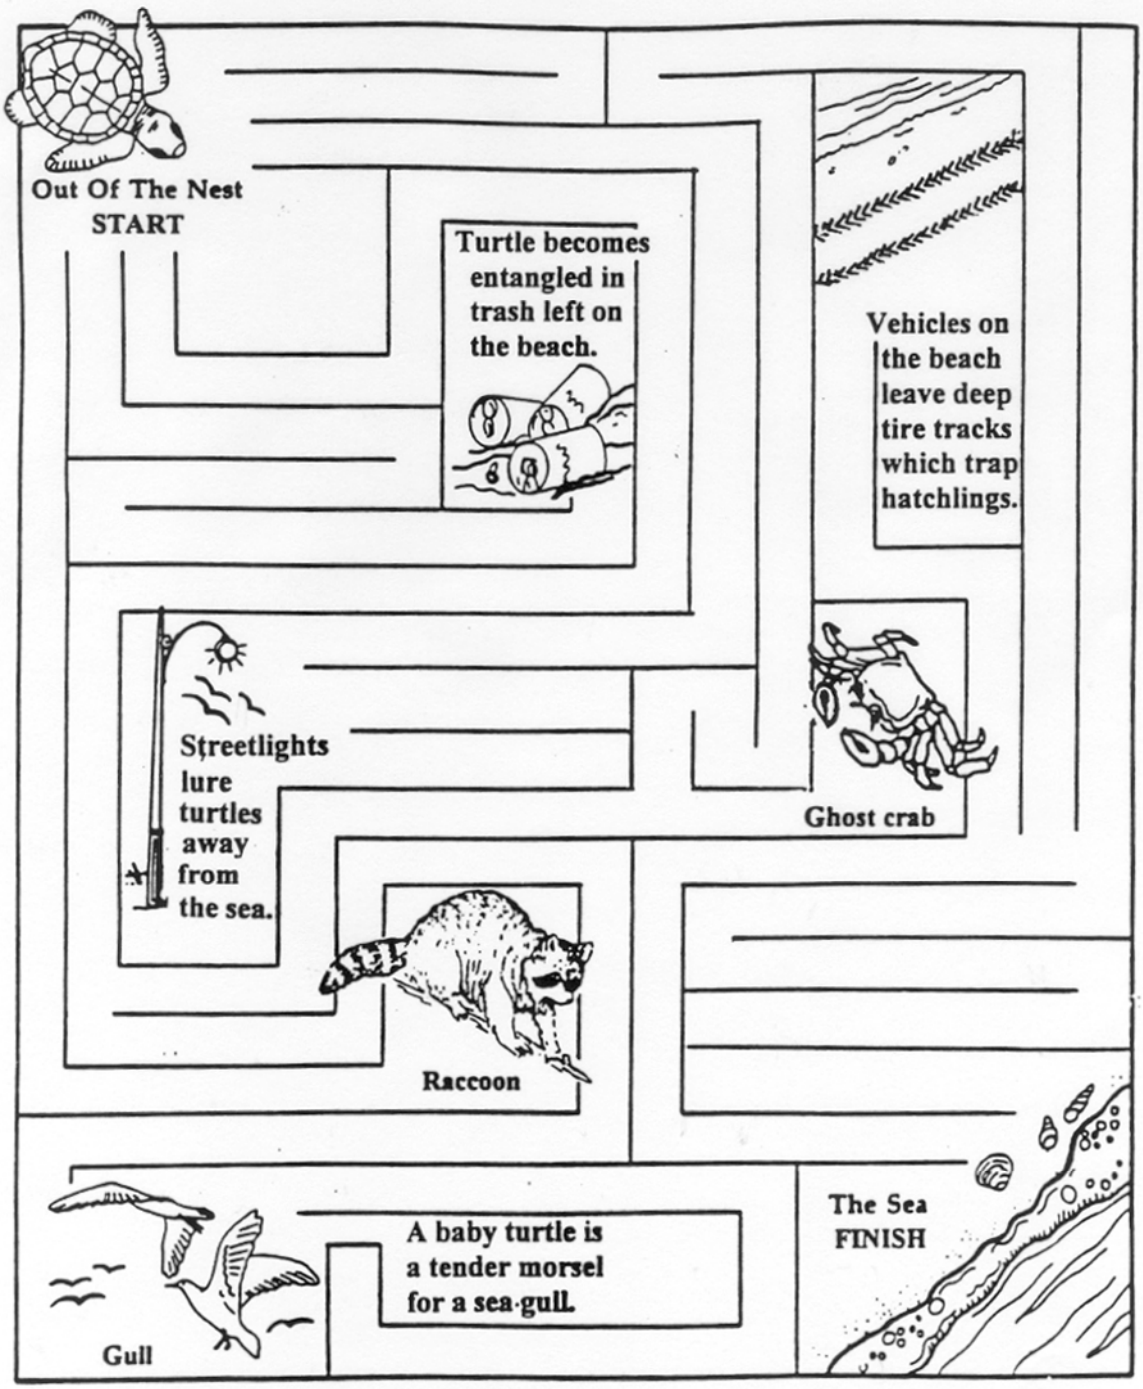
Turtle Hurtles

The beach at Ft. Matanzas National Monument is used as a nesting area for endangered green and threatened loggerhead sea turtles. After laying about 100 ping-pong ball sized eggs, the mother turtle returns to the sea. In about two months the eggs hatch, but the baby turtles face many dangers as they crawl to the ocean.


Help this hatchling avoid the dangers and find its way safely to the sea.