Where in the World is Baltimore?

Grade: 4

Class Periods/Duration: 1 class period

VSC Standards/Indicators:

Geography: Students will use geographic concepts and processes to examine the role of culture, technology, and the environment in the location and distribution of human activities and spatial connections throughout time.

3.A.1. Locate places and describe the human and physical characteristics of those places using geographic tools.

Social Studies Skills and Processes: Students shall use reading, writing, and thinking processes and skills to gain knowledge and understanding of political, historical and current events using chronological and spatial thinking, economic reasoning, and historical interpretation, by framing and evaluating questions from primary and secondary sources.

6.F.1. Interpret information from primary and secondary sources.

a. Interpret information in maps, charts and graphs.

Objectives:

1. Students will locate Baltimore in relation to the sailing trade routes of Great Britain.
2. Students will explain the importance of Baltimore's location to privateers during the War of 1812.

Teacher Background:

War of 1812

Following the Revolutionary War, the new nation looked forward to a time of peace. However, a war raged in Europe during the period between 1793 and 1815. France and England were in need of war supplies and they looked to the United States to provide the materials that they needed. Both countries attempted to prevent the United States from trading with the other.

Conflicts in the west led to increased tensions between the United States and Great Britain. The British continued to incite Native American attacks on U. S. settlements. On the open seas, British ships stopped American vessels and impressed the sailors. Americans became increasingly angry with the British for these actions. Many Americans called for war against Great Britain and in June 1812, the War of 1812 began.

Materials/Resources:

Maps of the Atlantic Ocean region (1 desk map per cooperative group)

Map of Baltimore's Harbor

Student Resource Sheet #1 - Journal

Student Resource Sheet #2 - Map Labels (1 set for each cooperative group)

Vocabulary/Concepts:

privateer – an armed ship licensed to attack enemy shipping trade route – one of the sea lanes ordinarily used for merchant ships

Lesson Development:

1. Divide the students into cooperative groups and distribute a map of the Atlantic Ocean region. Use classroom resources, such as maps, atlases and globes, to assist the group in locating and labeling the following sites on their desk map:

Atlantic Ocean	Caribbean Sea
Chesapeake Bay	Baltimore
Great Britain	Gulf Stream

2. Have the students decide the route that sailing ships would have taken to get from the Caribbean Sea to Great Britain. Use a marker or crayon to mark this route on the maps.
3. Ask the students to imagine that they are a sailing ship captain from Baltimore. Have them list the reasons why Baltimore was a good location for privateers. Encourage the students to use their maps as the basis for their ideas. Have the students create a skit in which they attempt to convince Baltimore merchants to provide money to outfit a privateer. Remind the students that privateers were licensed pirate vessels that could sell their prizes (the ships and cargoes of enemy merchant vessels captured).

Assessment:

Have the students assume the role of a Baltimore merchant during this time period. Ask them to make a journal entry explaining the decision to fund or not fund a voyage of a privateer. Make sure that the entry includes reasons for the decision.

Closure:

Display the maps that show the routes of the sailing ships. Have students share the journal entries.

Extension:

Visit Fort McHenry in Baltimore, Maryland.

Why Baltimore?

Grade: 4

Class Periods/Duration: 2-3 class periods

VSC Standards/Indicators:

History: Students will examine significant ideas, beliefs, and themes; organize patterns and events; and analyze how individuals and societies have changed over time in Maryland, the United States and around the world.

5.C.2. Describe the political, cultural, economic and social changes in Maryland during the early 1800's.

- a. Explain Maryland's role in the War of 1812, such as the Battle of Baltimore, the Battle of Bladensburg, and the burning of Washington.

Social Studies Skills and Processes: Students shall use reading, writing, and thinking processes and skills to gain knowledge and understanding of political, historical and current events using chronological and spatial thinking, economic reasoning, and historical interpretation, by framing and evaluating questions from primary and secondary sources.

6.A.1. Use appropriate strategies and opportunities to increase understandings of social studies vocabulary.

- d. Use new vocabulary in speaking and writing to gain and extend content knowledge and clarify expression.

Objectives:

1. Students will identify the reasons why the United States and Great Britain went to war in 1812.
2. Students will list the reason(s) why Britain wanted to attack and destroy Baltimore.

Vocabulary/Concepts:

blockade – an action to keep supplies from getting into or out of an area confiscate - to seize or take private property for the public good ironworker – a person who works in a mill or factory in which iron or steel is made merchant ship – a ship that carries goods neutral – not favoring either side in a quarrel or war privateer – armed ship; a sailor on a ship who has permission to attack enemy ships sail maker – a person who makes or repairs sails on a ship

shipwright – a person whose work is the construction and repair of ships

Materials/Resources:

Student Resource Sheet #1 - Why Baltimore?

Student Resource Sheet #2 - Why Were These Countries Angry?

Lesson Development:

1. Motivation: (Prearrange this role-playing demonstration with a student.)
Provide a student with a supply of pencils, erasers, rulers, etc. Tell the class that these supplies are the personal property of that student. Begin the lesson by taking one of the articles from the student's desk. Continue taking the supplies one by one without the permission of the student explaining as you take each item that the supplies are needed for other students or teachers. As you take the supplies, ask the students how they feel about the "confiscation" of the student's supplies. This exercise will demonstrate the unfairness of the usurpation of another's property and the emotions that it elicits.
2. Divide the class into cooperative groups and distribute the Why Baltimore? Resource Sheet. While reading, students should generate a list of words that describe what Baltimore was like in the early 1800's. Using this list, have students discuss if Baltimore was a valuable city for people who wanted to trade with other parts of the world.
3. In their groups, have students complete Student Resource Sheet #2.
4. Using information listed on the chart, have students individually prepare a speech for President Madison that calls for a declaration of war on Great Britain.

Assessment:

Student product – Speech

Closure:

Have the students read/present their speeches to the class.

Extension:

1. Visit Fort McHenry in Baltimore, Md.
2. Have students explain how Baltimore came to be known as a "Nest of Pirates." Ask the students to pretend that they are British merchants. Have them write a letter to the British government (Parliament) asking for help in stopping Baltimore privateers from attacking their vessels. Have the students read the letters to the class which will act as Parliament. Allow a debate and vote to determine the letter's effectiveness.

Why Baltimore?

In the early 1800's, Baltimore was a fast growing harbor city. The population was close to 50,000. Many of the men worked in the city at skilled jobs such as sail maker, ironworkers, shipwrights and merchants. Successful shipbuilding and the city's central location for trade helped to make Baltimore an important international seaport.

Meanwhile, France and Great Britain, at war with one another, had set up economic blockades to keep each other from getting important supplies. As a neutral carrier for both countries, America's merchant ships sometimes were caught in the blockades, and all of the goods would be confiscated by one or the other of the two countries. In addition, the British frequently captured American seaman and forced them to serve in the Royal Navy. Also, the Americans thought the British were encouraging the Indians in the West to attack frontier settlements. Shortly, the Americans became so angry about the way they were being treated that the United States declared war on Great Britain in June 1812 to protect "free trade and sailor's rights," and American rights on land.

When news of the Declaration of War reached Baltimore, some ship owners began turning their vessels into privateers. These privately owned ships were given permission from the government to capture British merchant ships. Soon, Baltimore was described as "a nest of pirates," and the British were determined to put an end to privateering.

Expecting a British attack, the people of Baltimore strengthened the city's defenses at Fort McHenry.

6.F.1. Interpret information from primary and secondary sources.

a. Interpret information in maps, charts and graphs.

Objectives:

1. Students will determine the best location for a fort to defend Baltimore's harbor from attack.
2. Students will defend their choice by using evidence they determine from their research.

Materials/Resources:

Student Resource Sheet #1 - Map of the Patapsco River and Bay Area

Chart Paper/Chalkboard

Markers/Chalk

Lesson Development:

1. Motivation: (Total Group) Ask the students to pretend that they are members of a search committee charged with finding the best location for a fort to defend Baltimore. Have students brainstorm requirements for an ideal location of any fort.

Ex: 1. can be defended on all sides

2. approaching enemies can be easily spotted

List students' responses on the chart paper/chalkboard

Now have students add additional requirements for a fort

2. Divide the students into cooperative groups. Distribute Student Resource Sheet #1. Have students place a star on the spot selected.
3. The groups will each present their choice to the entire class, along with reasons supporting their decisions.
4. Bring the class to consensus regarding the best site for a fort.

Assessment:

Teacher evaluation of student presentations.

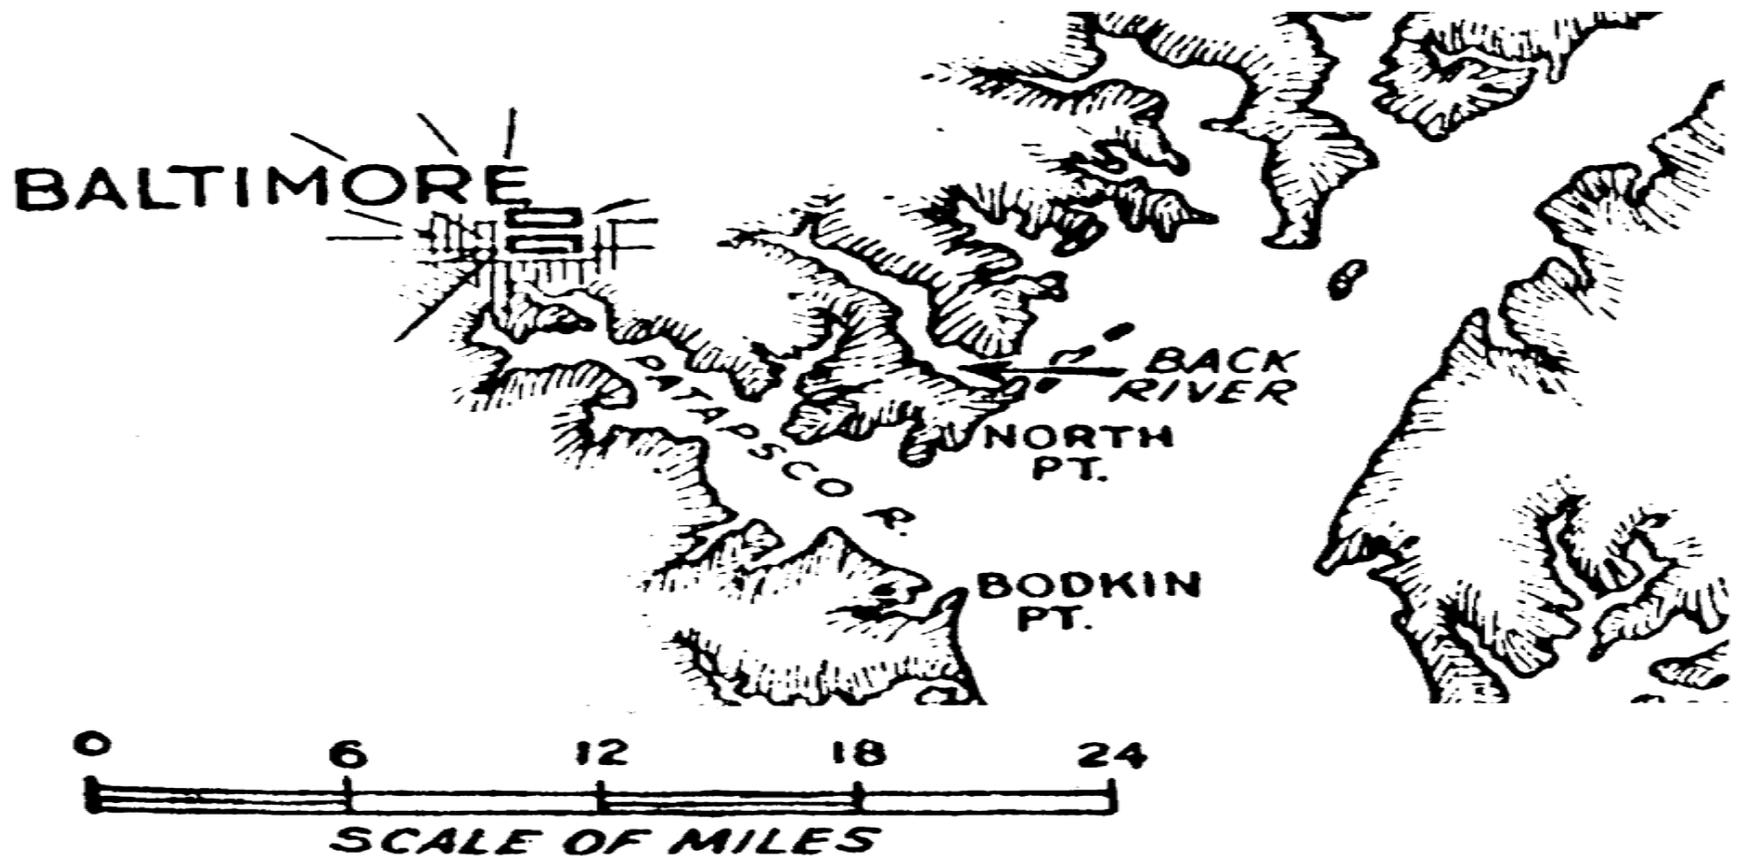

Closure:

Show the students the actual location of Fort McHenry. Compare and discuss the class choice with that site.

Extension:

6.F.1. Interpret information from primary and secondary sources

a. Interpret information in maps, charts and graphs

Objective:

Students will describe the shape of Fort McHenry and determine at least two reasons why this shape was used.

Vocabulary/Concepts:

barracks - a building or group of buildings for housing soldiers garrison - a fortified place with troops, guns, etc.

magazine - a space in which explosives are stored

Materials/Resources:

Student Resource Sheet #1 - The Star Fort

Students Resource Sheet #2 - Diagram of Fort McHenry

Drawing paper

Markers

Writing paper

Lesson Development:

1. Divide the students into cooperative groups and distribute Student Resource Sheet #1 - The Star Fort. Have the students make a list of the buildings mentioned in the reading. Ask them to write a short description of how each building was used.
2. Have the students draw a five-pointed star shape. Using the description from the reading, have them place symbols showing where they think each building was located.

3. Distribute Student Resource Sheet #2 - Diagram of Fort McHenry. Ask students to compare the diagram of the fort to their drawings. Make a list of any differences between the drawings and the diagram.

Assessment:

Have students present reasons for placement of specific buildings and the purpose of using a star-shaped structure. Teacher will determine from this discussion the depth of student understanding.

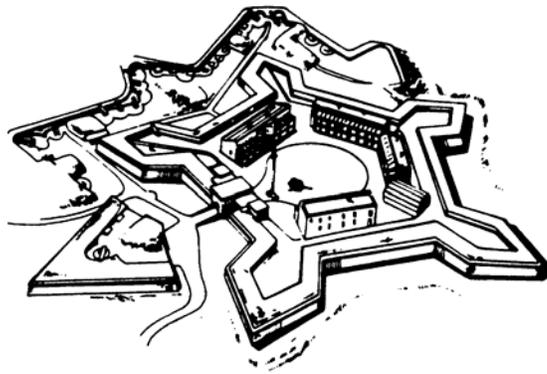

Closure:

Make a master list of student responses. Post the list with the students' drawings.

Extension:

The Star Fort

Fort McHenry was constructed between 1799 and 1802. It was in the shape of a five-pointed star, which was a popular design during the period. Each point of the star was visible from the point on either side; and every area of land surrounding the fort could be covered with as few as five men.

The walls of Fort McHenry and the buildings within were constructed of brick. There were four barracks to house the garrison consisting of the Commanding Officer's Quarters, Junior Officers' Quarters and two buildings for the enlisted men. A guardhouse stood next to the Commanding Officer's Quarters. Here, soldiers of the Fort McHenry Guard lived and worked; sometimes-unruly soldiers were confined in the guardrooms. The Powder Magazine, where the gunpowder was stored, stood between the Commanding Officer's Quarters and the Junior Officers' Quarters. The magazine was of solid enough construction to protect the gunpowder from sparks, fire and explosion.

During the 1830's, major improvements were made to the fort. Second stories were added to the barracks and two new guardhouses were built on each side of the Sally Port to replace the two earlier ones.

While you are visiting the fort, try to imagine how it looked during its early years.

- a. Explain Maryland's role in the War of 1812, such as the Battle of Baltimore, the Battle of Bladensburg, and the burning of Washington.

Social Studies Skills and Processes:

D. Acquire Social Studies Information

1. Identify primary and secondary sources of information that relate to the topic/situation/problem being studied.

Objective:

The students will distinguish between the three groups of defenders of Fort McHenry.

Vocabulary/Concepts:

artillery - large caliber weapon for discharging iron balls and bombs

corps - a group of soldiers acting under one command

militia - armed citizens

Materials/Resources:

Student Resource Sheet #1 - The Defenders

Student Resource Sheet #2 - Picture/Explanation

Crayons, Markers, or Colored Pencils

Lesson Development:

1. Distribute Student Sheet #1 - The Defenders to the students. Have the students read the handout to compare and contrast the three groups of defenders. Have them use a Venn diagram or other graphic organizer to illustrate the differences and similarities among the defenders.
2. Allow students to color the three drawings on the handout. Have them label the drawings with the name of the group they think each drawing represents. Have them explain why they think their ideas on the identity of the defenders are correct.

Assessment:

Teacher should assess the accuracy of the student labeling.

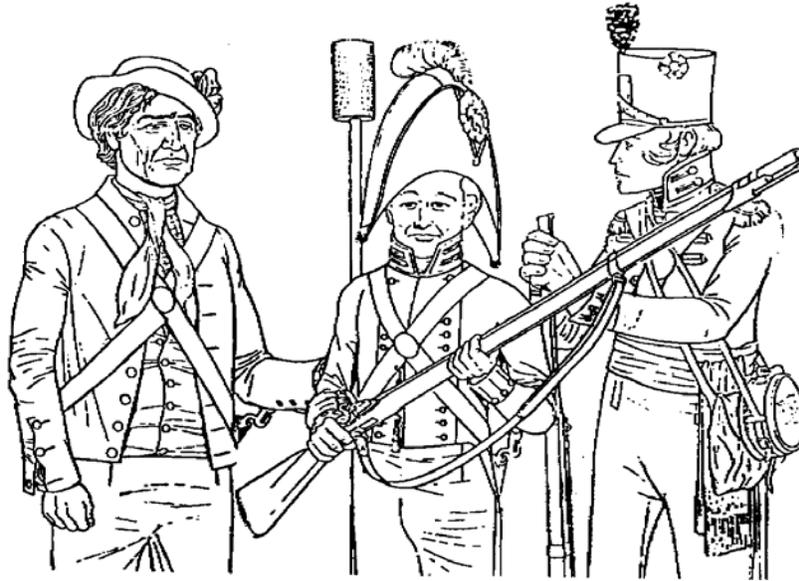

Closure:

Using Student Worksheet #1 the students will select the defender with whom they think they would most like to have been associated. The students will complete the sheet and discuss their reasons.

Extension:

The Defenders

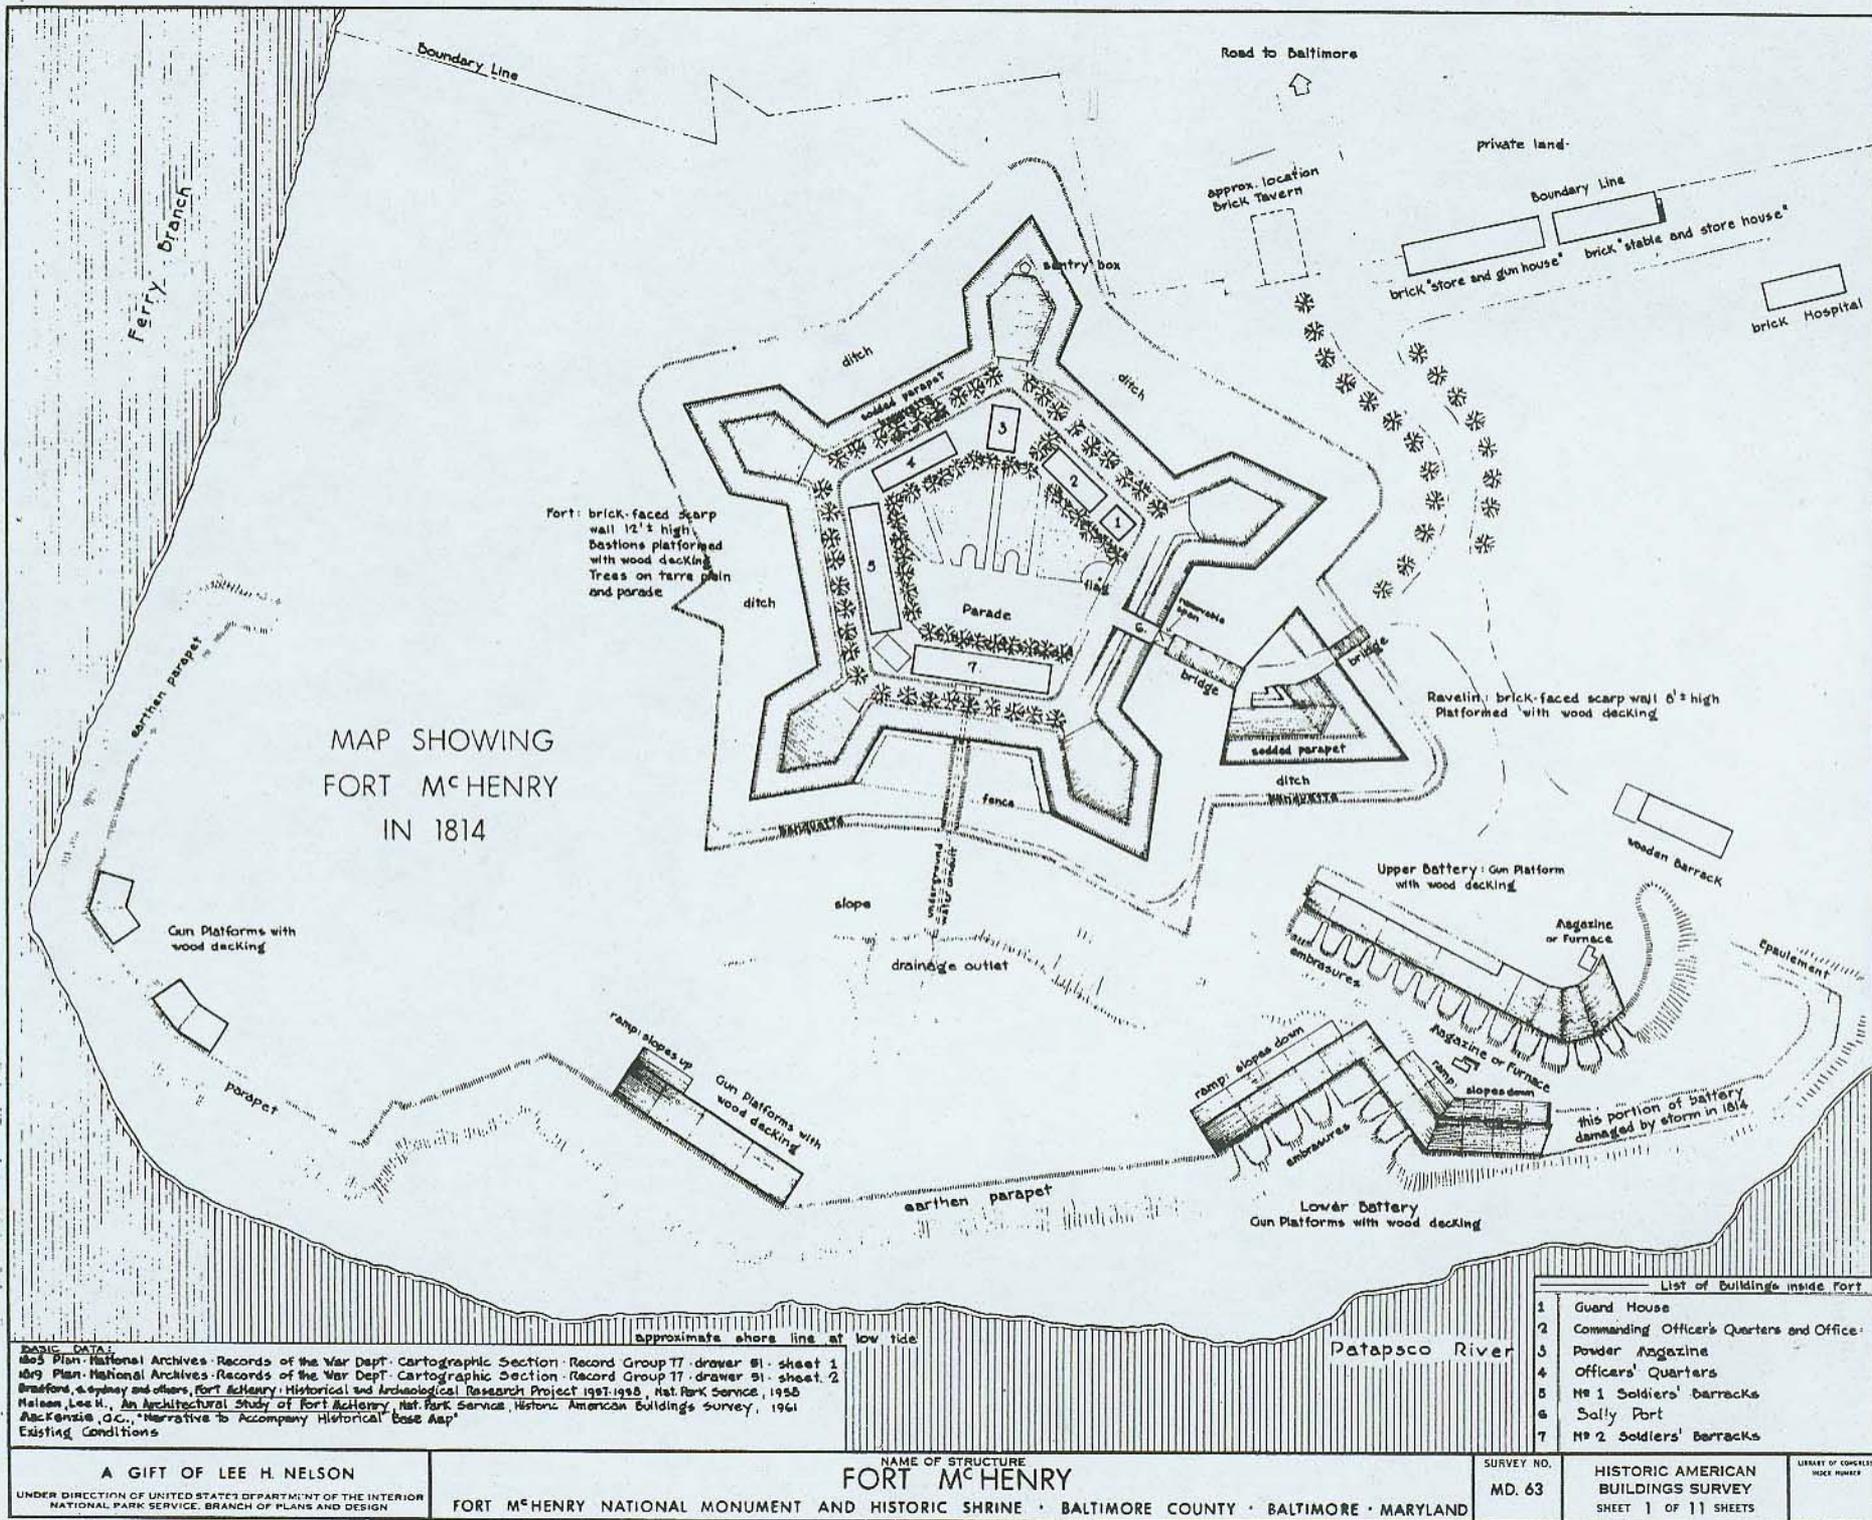

The 1,000 men who defended Fort McHenry during the Battle of Baltimore were members of three fighting units. The first group was members of the U.S. Army "Corps of Artillery." These men lived at Fort McHenry and were paid eight dollars a month for their services. The "Corps of Artillery" uniform consisted of a dark blue jacket called a "coatee." It had a high red collar trimmed with yellow and a single row of brass buttons down the front. In addition, the men were given a linen shirt, one pair of white summer trousers and one pair of blue wool trousers. A stiff felt hat, called a "shako," protected the soldier's head, much as a helmet would.

Another group of defenders was the "Maryland Militia," private citizens who felt it necessary to aid in the defense of the city. Militiamen were volunteers who were not paid until April 1813, when the militia was federalized for 30 days and released. From early August through September 20, 1814, the militia was given rations. These men came from all walks of life - bakers, tailors, shipbuilders, merchants, bankers and lawyers. The uniform was a blue wool jacket with a red collar and cuffs, a white linen shirt and white trousers. Militiamen wore large, black felt hats, trimmed in yellow and adorned with a large red feather.

The third group was a group of sailors from Commodore Joshua Barney's Flotilla, which had been formed in 1813 to provide naval protection for the Chesapeake Bay. Sailors did not have a regular uniform. Sometimes the ship's captain would decide what the crew would wear. It is likely, however, that many sailors wore blue wool jackets and vests. Their trousers, usually white, but sometimes blue striped, may have been made from linen or heavy canvas. Sailors wore hats that had been waterproofed with "tar" to protect the hat while at sea.

In spite of their different uniforms, the three groups of men had one thing in common - the protection of Baltimore from destruction. The bravery of these men and their skill in operating the cannons helped defend Baltimore. Cannon firing was a difficult and dangerous job. Artillery soldiers drilled long and hard, until they could load and fire the guns quickly. There was always the possibility that a cannon might explode, killing the crewmembers. Often, men lost their hearing from the frequent, loud cannon blasts.

6.G.1.a. Describe how the state has changed over time and how people have contributed to its change, drawing from maps, photographs, newspapers and other sources.

Objective:

The students will detail the events in the life of William Williams.

Vocabulary/Concepts:

mulatto - a person of mixed white and black ancestry muster roll - a list of the officers and men in a military unit recruit - to enlist as a member of an armed service

rigger - one who works with sails and masts of ships

Materials/Resources:

Student Resource Sheet#1 - A Black Soldier Defends Fort McHenry

Student Resource Sheet#2 - Graphic Organizer

Lesson Development:

1. Distribute Student Resource Sheet #1 - A Black Soldier Defends Fort McHenry.
2. Prior to reading the selection have students discuss:
 - a. Who was William Williams?
 - b. Based on the picture, what do you think he did?
3. Distribute Student Resource Sheet #2. Instruct the students to read the story and complete the graphic organizer using facts from the story.
4. After reading, have the students discuss the actions of William Williams using the information recorded on their organizers.

Assessment:

Have students write a poem, song, rap, create a picture or make a plaque that honors the actions of Private Williams.

Closure:

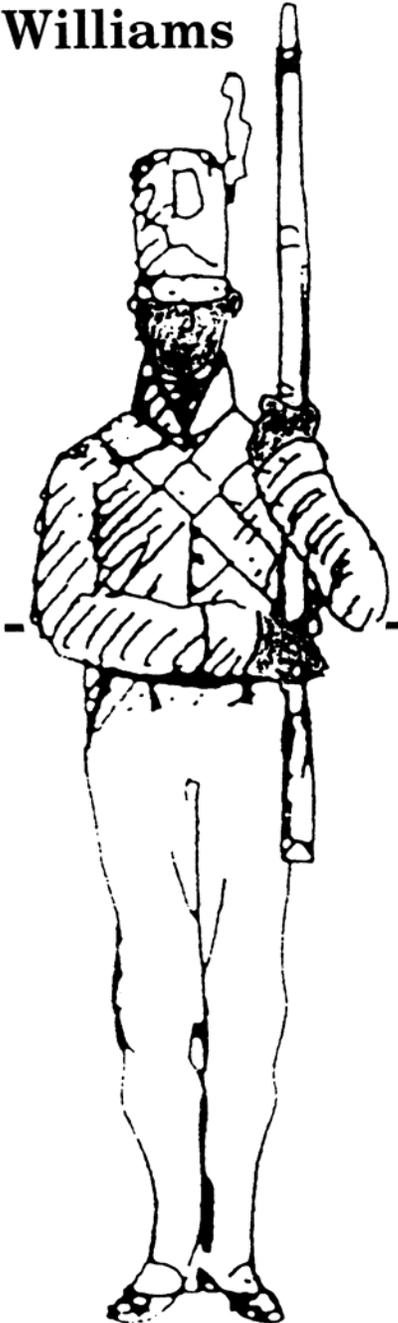

Share the poems, songs, raps, pictures, plaques or other student-made products with the entire class.

Extension:

Bring or send examples to Fort McHenry and share them with the Rangers.

A Black Soldier Defends Fort McHenry

No. 203 William Williams

This name is listed with the names of other recruits on the muster roll of the 38th U.S. Infantry. It seems like any other name and should not warrant a second glance, but this recruit is different. Williams was a 21 year-old, black runaway slave laborer.

Williams was a native Marylander slave. He had run away from his owner Benjamin Oden in the spring of 1814. Williams was enlisted as a private in the U.S. Army and was assigned to the 38th U.S. Infantry Regiment. Federal law at the time prohibited the enlistment of slaves into the army because they "could make no valid contract with the government."

The officer who enlisted Williams did not question him. A reward notice posted at the time, by his owner, described Williams as "a bright mulatto.... and so fair as to show freckles." Nevertheless, Williams received his enlistment bounty of $50 and was paid a private's wage of $8 per month. In early September 1814, the 38th U.S. Infantry was ordered to march to Fort McHenry. During the bombardment, Williams was severely wounded, having his leg "blown off by a cannonball." He was taken to the Baltimore Hospital where he died two months later.

Williams was not the only black man to serve in the armed services at this time. There are numerous records of black sailors. George Roberts, a free black, served on the privateers Chasseur ("Pride of Baltimore") and Sarah Ann. Charles Ball was a seaman in Commodore Joshua Barney's U.S. Chesapeake Flotilla who later published his memoirs in 1836.

Gabriel Roulson was an Ordinary Seaman on the U.S. Sloop of War Ontario. Baltimore also had many skilled free blacks who, as naval mechanics, sailmakers, riggers, carpenters and ship caulkers, helped build naval ships and privateers that would bring war to the British merchant fleet and navy. Many of these men and slaves helped construct gun carriages and build defenses. Williams is unique because he served in the U.S. Army, a branch of the armed services that was almost exclusively white at the time.

All Americans can take pride in the contribution of Williams and other blacks whose names may be lost to history, who fought beside white defenders and helped save Baltimore during its time of crisis in 1814.

Grade: 4

Class Periods/Duration: 1 Class Period

VSC Standards/Indicators:

Social Studies Skills and Processes: Students shall use reading, writing, and thinking processes and skills to gain knowledge and understanding of political, historical, and current events using chronological and spatial thinking, economic reasoning, and historical interpretation, by framing and evaluating questions from primary and secondary sources.

- 6.F.1. Interpret information from primary and secondary sources.
- a. Interpret information in maps, charts and graphs.

Note to Teacher: While this lesson appears to be primarily a mathematics lesson, the intent is to illustrate to the students the amount of careful planning that went into the construction of the fort to ensure adequate fortification. This lesson can be taught in conjunction with a mathematics measurement unit.

Objectives:

1. Students will calculate the perimeter of the fort's walls.
2. Students will calculate the area of the inside of the fort.
3. Students will evaluate the capacity of the fort to house the required number of soldiers to protect the fort and the city.

Vocabulary/Concepts:

obsolete – no longer in use

dimensions – measure of sides

Materials/Resources:

Student Resource Sheet #1 - Fort McHenry Today

Lesson Development:

1. Divide the students into cooperative groups and distribute the Student Resource Sheet #1 - Fort McHenry Today.
2. Have the students determine the perimeter of the fort's walls. Remind them that all of the dimensions are on the drawing. They will have to be accurate in planning how to determine the number of walls and the matching length measurement. Model how to identify a wall and its length.
3. Have the students use the inside measurement on the diagram to determine the area of the grounds. Once the area has been calculated, have the students consider the following: If 1,000 soldiers were protecting the fort, did they have a lot of space to hide from British bombs and rockets? (Note: A simulation would facilitate student understanding. Have the students calculate the area of the classroom. Note the number of students who currently occupy the room. Compare that to the area of the fort and the number of soldiers protecting the fort.)

Assessment:

Determine the accuracy of the calculations and student understanding of the size of the fort compared to the demands placed upon it during this time.

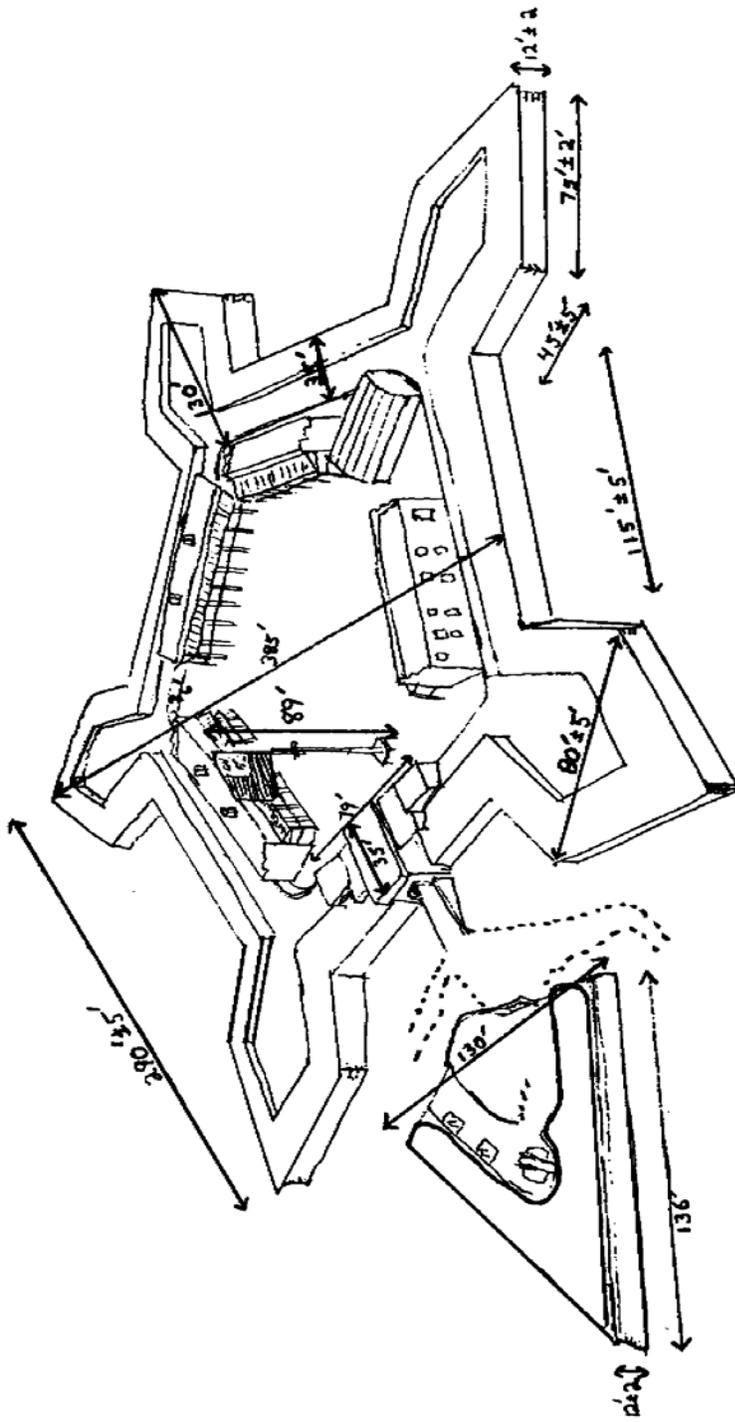

Closure:

Review the purpose of the fort and the physical dimensions. Have students discuss whether or not they would feel safe and/or comfortable being housed at Fort McHenry at the time of the Battle of Baltimore.

Extension:

Have groups of students draw all the possible lines of fire from the fort. Determine if they understand the popularity and effectiveness of the five-pointed star fort design? Have them discuss the question: If this design was so important in 1812, why was Fort McHenry obsolete by the end of the Civil War? Students can conduct research to answer this question.

Lesson Development:

1. Divide the students into cooperative groups.
2. Distribute Student Resource Sheet #1 - The Great Garrison Flag.
3. Have each group read the handout to identify the following information:
 - a. dimensions of the Great Garrison Flag
 - b. dimensions of the storm flag
 - c. size of a single star on the flag
 - d. size of a single stripe on the flag
 - e. number of stars on the flag
 - f. number of stripes on the flag
 - g. the person who wanted to fly such a huge flag
 - h. why the flag was made so large
 - i. the person who made the flag
 - j. the people who ordered the flag to be made
 - k. the person who wrote a poem after seeing the flag
 - l. where you can see the flag today
4. Have groups report findings to the total class.

Assessment:

Accuracy of group answers.

Closure:

Correct any inaccuracies in responses and post completed activity sheets.

Extension:

Have groups brainstorm ways to demonstrate the dimensions of the Great Garrison Flag. Have students decide which of the ideas is the most practical way of showing the size of the flag.

Note to Teacher:

Some ideas could be:

1. standing around the perimeter of the flag's dimensions,
2. creating a copy of the flag on the school's playground,
3. using string or rope to create the flag's outline.

Take a picture of the class's demonstration for showing the flag's dimensions. Bring it to Fort McHenry and share it with the Rangers.

GREAT GARRISON FLAG

During the War of 1812, the people of Baltimore were certain that the British would attack the city. Not knowing for sure when an attack would occur, they spent months preparing for it. Everything was made ready at Fort McHenry to defend Baltimore. But, there was no suitable flag to fly over the Star Fort. Major George Armistead, the commanding officer, desired "to have a flag so large that the British will have no difficulty in seeing it from a distance."

Major Armistead got his wish when General John S. Stricker and Commodore Joshua Barney ordered two flags, especially made for the garrison, from Mary Pickersgill, a well-known flag maker in Baltimore. She worked relentlessly on the heavy, woolen flags, one of which was to be the largest battle flag ever flown. It measured 30 feet wide by 42 feet long. The other flag, called a "storm flag," measured 17 feet by 25 feet.

The larger of the two flags had stripes two feet wide and stars 24 inches from point to point. At that time, it was the practice to add one star and one stripe for each new state joining the Union. In 1814, the official United States flag had 15 stars and 15 stripes.

The 30' X 42' flag was the one that Francis Scott Key saw on the morning of September 14, 1814. It inspired him to write the words to "The Star-Spangled Banner." Today, this flag is displayed in the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American History, Washington, D.C.

2.B.1. Analyze how Maryland society was influenced by the contributions of people and groups.

- a. Describe the contribution of individuals and groups, such as Francis Scott Key, Benjamin Banneker, Mary Pickersgill, Clara Barton and Freedmen’s Bureau.

Social Studies Skills and Processes

6.D.1.a. Gather and read appropriate print sources, such as journals, textbooks, timelines, trade books, and web sites.

Objectives:

1. Students will create a timeline summarizing the life of Francis Scott Key.
2. Students will write a newspaper interview or article describing the events that led to the writing of “The Star-Spangled Banner.”

Vocabulary/Concepts:

artillery - large caliber weapon for discharging iron balls and bombs

bombardment - to attack especially with artillery

handbill - a small printed sheet to be distributed by hand ministry - the office, duties, or functions of a government official

pleurisy - a disease of the lungs

Materials/Resources:

Student Resource Sheet #1 - Francis Scott Key

Student Resource Sheet #2 - Timeline

Student Resource Sheet #3 - Newspaper Article Graphic Organizer

Blackboard or Chart Paper for Teacher Timeline

Lesson Development:

1. Distribute Student Resource Sheet #1 - Francis Scott Key to the students.
2. Have the students read the handout and create a timeline showing the stated and implied dates and events of Key’s life using Student Resource Sheet #2 – Timeline.
3. Have students share their timelines and create a model class timeline using that information.

Assessment:

Accuracy of timelines

Closure:

Review timelines and post student papers.

Extension:

Using the information from the timeline and Student Resource Sheet #3, have the students imagine that they are newspaper reporters in 1814. They are to conduct an interview, complete with questions and answers, with Francis Scott Key. The interview should provide information regarding how Key came to be involved in the attack of Fort McHenry and why he was moved to write the poem that became “The Star-Spangled Banner.”

Ask the students to use their interviews to write a newspaper article that details the events what were covered in the interview.

Francis Scott Key

Francis Scott Key was born on August 1, 1779, in western Maryland. His family was very wealthy and owned an estate called "Terra Rubra."

When Francis was 10 years old, his parents sent him to grammar school in Annapolis. After graduating at the age of 17, he began to study law in Annapolis while working with his uncle's law firm. By 1805, he had a well-established law practice of his own in Georgetown, a suburb of Washington, D.C. By 1814, he had appeared many times before the Supreme Court and had been appointed the United States District Attorney.

Francis Scott Key was a deeply religious man. At one time in his life, he almost gave up his law practice to enter the ministry. Instead, he resolved to become involved in the Episcopal Church. Because of his religious beliefs, Key was strongly opposed to the War of 1812. However, due to his deep love for his country, he did serve for a brief time in the Georgetown field artillery in 1813.

During the War of 1812, Dr. William Beanes, a close friend of Key's was taken prisoner by the British. Since Key was a well-known lawyer, he was asked to assist in efforts to get Dr. Beanes released. Knowing that the British were in the Chesapeake Bay, Key left for Baltimore. There Key met with Colonel John Skinner, a government agent who arranged for prisoner exchanges. Together, they set out on a small boat to meet the Royal Navy

On board the British flagship, the officers were very kind to Key and Skinner. They agreed to release Dr. Beanes. However, the three men were not permitted to return to Baltimore until after the bombardment of Fort McHenry. The three Americans were placed aboard the American ship and waited behind the British fleet. From a distance of approximately eight miles, Key and his friends watched the British bombard Fort McHenry.

After 25 hours of continuous bombing, the British decided to leave since they were unable to destroy the fort as they had hoped. Realizing that the British had ceased the attack, Key looked toward the fort to see if the flag was still there. To his relief, the flag was still flying! Quickly, he wrote down the words to a poem which was soon handed out as a handbill under the title "Defence of Fort McHenry." It was renamed "The Star- Spangled Banner" by an adoring public. It became a popular patriotic song. It was not until 1931, however, that it became our National Anthem.

After the war, Francis Scott Key continued to live a very religious life. He was well-liked by his friends and was active in society. On January 11, 1843, while visiting his daughter in Baltimore, Key died of pleurisy. To honor the author of "The Star-Spangled Banner," there are monuments at: Fort McHenry; on Eutaw Street in Baltimore; at Mt. Olivet Cemetery in Frederick, Maryland; and at the Presidio in San Francisco, California.

Grade: 4

Class Periods/Duration: 1 class period

VSC Standards/Indicators:

Social Studies Skills and Processes:

Students shall use reading, writing, and thinking processes and skills to gain knowledge and understanding of political, historical, and current events using chronological and spatial thinking, economic reasoning, and historical interpretation, by framing and evaluating questions from primary and secondary sources.

6.A.3. Use strategies to monitor understanding and make meaning from text (during reading).

- g. Visualize what was read for deeper meaning.

Objectives:

1. Students will interpret the figurative language of the first verse of “The Star-Spangled Banner” to create an illustration.
2. Students will rewrite the first verse using their own words.

Vocabulary/concepts:

rampart - a wall-like ridge

Materials/Resources:

Student Resource Sheet #1 - “The Star-Spangled Banner”

Student Resource Sheet #2 - Graphic Organizer

Drawing Paper, Crayons, Markers

Lesson Development:

1. Divide the students into cooperative groups and distribute the Student Resource Sheet #1 - “The Star-Spangled Banner.” Ask the groups to read the first verse of the poem.
2. Have the groups do a Think-Pair-Share activity to brainstorm ideas regarding what they think the words represent.
3. Have students rewrite the first stanza of the poem in their own words.
4. Have students create a visual or illustration which represents the scene created by Key’s words in the stanza.

Assessment:

Check students’ understanding based on the accuracy of the visuals.

Closure:

Have students share their interpretations of the first verse of the poem.

Extension:

Have students use the first verse as the basis for a paragraph or short report of the attack on Fort McHenry. They can imagine that they are newspaper reporters who are interviewing Francis Scott Key and the first verse is a description of what he saw happen during the attack on the fort.

"The Star-Spangled Banner"

Francis Scott Key, a young poet-lawyer, witnessed the bombardment of Fort McHenry while under British guard on an American truce ship in the Patapsco River. Seeing his country's flag still flying over the Fort the next morning, he was moved to pen these immortal lines:

*O say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming!
And the rockets's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there:
O say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?*

*On the shore, dimly seen through the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the mornings' first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines on the stream:
'Tis the star-spangled banner! O long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!*

*And where is that band who so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion
A home and a country should leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps pollution.
No refuge could save the hireling and slave
From the terror of flight, or the gloom of the grave:
And the star-spangled banner in triumph doth wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!*

*O thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand
Between their loved homes and the war's desolation!
Blest with victory and peace, may the heaven-rescued land
Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation
Then conquer we must when our cause it is just
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust."
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!*

Insignia of Organizations Stationed at Fort McHenry During Its History

Fort McHenry's history began in 1776 during the Revolutionary War. The people of Baltimore feared an attack by the British and wanted to build a fort for protection. Anticipating an attack at any time, a fort of earthen mounds was constructed quickly. Originally, it was called Fort Whetstone, because of its location on Whetstone Point.

Whetstone Point was an excellent location for a fort for two reasons. It was located far enough from Baltimore to provide protection without endangering the city and the area was a peninsula - a body of land surrounded on three sides by water. Constructing the fort on this site meant that enemy ships, sailing into Baltimore, would have to pass the fort first.

The Revolutionary War ended without an attack on Baltimore, but improvements to the fort continued. In 1798, a French engineer was directed by the Secretary of War to draw plans for a new fort on Whetstone Point. These plans were expensive and it was difficult for the people of Baltimore to raise money for construction. However, James McHenry, a well-known politician, was instrumental in raising funds for the new fort. The fort was named "Fort McHenry" in his honor.

Fort McHenry became famous when the British tried to attack Baltimore during the War of 1812. When the bombardment began on September 13, 1814, there were 1,000 soldiers defending the fort. Some were federal soldiers who were stationed at Fort McHenry all the time. Many were volunteers from the city of Baltimore. Their commanding officer was Major George Armistead. For 25 hours, the British bombarded Fort McHenry, but the fort's artillery fire kept the British away. Baltimore was saved.

In the 1860's the United States was torn apart by the Civil War. Union troops were stationed at Fort McHenry to help keep Baltimore out of the hands of those who would have Maryland join the southern cause. The fort's guns were turned toward the city. Fort McHenry was used as a prison where political prisoners suspected of being Confederate sympathizers were held, often without trial. Many Confederate soldiers were imprisoned at the fort as well.

In 1917 during the first World War, General Hospital No. 2 was established at Fort McHenry by the War Department. It was the largest military hospital in the country with over 100 temporary buildings to accommodate wounded American soldiers returning from the war in Europe.

When the war ended, the need for the hospital slowly diminished and in 1925 the temporary buildings were torn down. Fort McHenry became a national park which today is administered by the National Park Service as the country's only National Monument and Historic Shrine. Exhibits around the fort will help you visualize life at Fort McHenry during the various stages of its history.
