

2016 Glacier National Park Annual Pass Artwork Contest

Glacier National Park and the Glacier National Park Conservancy are accepting submissions from sixth through twelfth grade students for the park's Annual Pass Artwork Contest. The purpose of the student contest is to promote stewardship and understanding of resources protected in Glacier National Park. The focus for the contest is for young artists to create and submit original, colorful artwork that displays the majesty of Glacier National Park in celebration of the National Park Service Centennial in 2016. The first place winning entry will be the artwork on Glacier's 2016 Annual Park Pass. Over 14,000 passes are sold each year.

Entry Guidelines

Each entry for the contest must include colorful, original artwork depicting one or more of the natural or cultural resources protected in the park. Text will be inserted on the artwork of the first place winning artwork for use on the 2016 park pass, as shown above. No text is required and artist name should only be written on the back of the artwork. A completed entry form (below) must accompany all submissions. Students under the age of 18 require the signature of a parent or guardian.

Judging and Prizes

Entries will be judged on design and accuracy of a scene that displays the majesty of the park in celebration of the National Park Service Centennial. Art may include any natural or cultural resource of the park, or symbol of the National Park Service. Entries must be in color and will be judged on originality, neatness, and the use of color. Winners will be announced in June. Winners will be notified by mail or phone at the home address listed on the entry form. Please contact the Glacier National Park Conservancy at 406-892-3250 for more information.
