

The picture below illustrates the effect that the Ely Energy Center (EEC) could have on the view from Great Basin National Park (GBNP). The left portion of the frame represents clearer conditions at GBNP, the right portion represents the contribution to haze from EEC under its greatest impact on the park, based on air quality modeling. It should be noted that the split picture accentuates the perceived difference between the clear and polluted view.

The picture below illustrates clearer conditions at Great Basin National Park.

The picture below illustrates the effect that the Ely Energy Center (EEC) could have on the view from Great Basin National Park (GBNP). It represents the contribution to haze from EEC under its greatest impact on the park, based on air quality modeling.

