Park Ranger Protection Spotlight

The Department of the Interior places a high value on diversity of experience and cultural perspectives and encourages applications from all interested eligible candidates. Park Ranger (Protection) employees have training and education in law enforcement and use the knowledge and skills therein to protect the natural and cultural resources of America's national parks. Their daily operations can range from delivering resource and cultural education to visitors to using legal authority to ensure visitors are respecting and preserving our park's resources during their visits.
