E komo mai... come and join the Makuakāne 'ohana—mother Violet May with her daughter Joni Mae and son Kenneth—as they share the arts and music of Hawaiian culture with park visitors.

Monday, January 8, 2007

10:00 am to 1:00 pm

On the lawn by the Kīlauea Visitor Center

Violet May will teach the art of kahili (feather standard) making. You can watch or better yet, join in and make your own kahili to take home.

Park Ranger Joni Mae, an accomplished lei maker, will display an array of lei made from plants, seeds, and shells, in both the traditional and contemporary style.

Singer and songwriter, Kenneth will play original songs from his recently-released first solo album, "Makuakāne" as well as his other award-winning compositions.
