

A UNIQUE SUMMER 2008 ARCHAEOLOGICAL FIELD SCHOOL

Conducted jointly by the University of Kansas, the National Park Service's Midwest Archeological Center, the Kansas State Historical Society, and the Kansas Anthropological Association
Six Weeks in June and July
Beginning June 2nd and ending July 25th

Where:

Pawnee Indian Village State Historical Site, North-Central Kansas
Kanorado: Stratified Early Paleoindian Campsites on the High Plains of Northwestern Kansas
The Hopeton Earthworks, a National Historic Landmark and part of the Hopewell Culture National Historical Park in South-Central Ohio.

Instructors:

Dr. Jack Hofman (Archaeologist, Univ. of Kansas)
Dr. Mark Lynott (Archaeologist, National Park Service)
Dr. Rolfe Mandel (Geoarchaeologist, Univ. of Kansas)
Dr. Robert Hoard (Archaeologist, Kansas State Historical Society)
Dr. Mary Adair (Paleoethnobotanist, Univ. of Kansas)

For more information, contact Dr. Jack Hofman: hofman@ku.edu