Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

HISTORY

The Independence National Historical Park (INDE) Library and Archives contains official reports that document the park's mission to preserve and interpret "historical structures and properties of outstanding national significance located in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and associated with the American Revolution and the founding and growth of the United States." These reports have been organized into the Historic Resource Studies Collection.

The Historic Resource Studies Collection seeks to be a comprehensive collection of reports that directly relate to the management and operations of the park. Also known as cultural resource studies, these reports are produced by National Park Service staff, contractors, and researchers in the course of conducting the park's business. The collection reflects the stages of the park's development and illustrates how plans for historic interpretation, preservation, and the administration of INDE's cultural resources evolved over time. Reports in this collection precede the park's enabling legislation in 1948, and follow the park's development through to the present day. The cultural resource studies include historical research on the eighteenth and early nineteenth century, as well as master plans for preservation, maintenance, and interpretation. Research reports can include a variety of useful information, including narrative history, illustrations, and statistical data, and are intended to address specific research needs within the park. Many of the reports center on individual park sites, and contain information on architectural history and a site's past inhabitants. Reports also include interpretation guides and set forth plans for preservation and furnishing of park buildings.

The present Historic Resource Studies Collection developed from a History Branch project in 1983 that inventoried INDE's cultural resource studies. In 1998, the park archivist formally organized the collection. The Historic Resource Studies Collection was completed in conjunction with the Northeast Region's (NER) Cultural Resource Bibliography (CRBIB) Project, which resulted in a comprehensive database of resource management reports from parks throughout the NER. The CRBIB Project Online Catalog can be accessed at <http://nercrbib.nps.gov>.

Some of these reports pre-date the park and document land acquisition strategies and initial preservation plans for park sites. Of particular importance in this series is the National Shrines Park Commission Report, submitted to Congress in 1947 in support of the creation of a national park in Philadelphia. The report suggests prospective sites for inclusion into the park, and includes supporting documents from the City of Philadelphia.
