COPYRIGHT AND RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

HISTORY

Independence National Historical Park (INDE) was authorized by an act of Congress on June 28, 1948, and was formally established on July 4, 1956, “preserving for the benefit of the American people as a national historical park certain historical structures and properties of outstanding and national significance...associated with the American Revolution and the founding and growth of the United States.” Located in the Society Hill, Old City, and Germantown neighborhoods of Philadelphia, Independence National Historical Park encompasses not only such famous sites and artifacts as Independence Hall, Congress Hall, and the Liberty Bell, but over twenty other structures, gardens, squares, and cemeteries.

Independence National Historical Park observed the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution in 1987 by hosting many programs and events. A highlight of these celebrations was Miracle at Philadelphia, an exhibit exploring the history of the Constitutional Convention and the ratification of the Constitution in 1787. Housed at the Second Bank of the United States from 1986 to 1987, the exhibit was organized by the Friends of Independence National Historical Park (FINHP) in partnership with The American Philosophical Society, The Historical Society of Pennsylvania, The Library Company of Philadelphia, and Independence National Historical Park. It was funded primarily through grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the J. Howard Pew Freedom Trust.

Margaret Pace (Peggy) Duckett served as project director for Miracle at Philadelphia and oversaw much of the planning. Other key individuals included the history, museum, and interpretive staff at INDE, historical consultant Richard Rabinowitz of American History Workshop, exhibit designer Nick Paffett of Krent/Paffett Associates, and fabricators from Charles Maltbie Associates. In addition to members of the consortium, participating institutions that loaned documents and portraits for the exhibit included the National Museum of American Art, the Library of Congress, and the Windsor Castle Royal Library.

The self-guided, multimedia exhibit opened to the public on September 17, 1986. The opening was officiated by Philadelphia Mayor W. Wilson Goode, and was attended by Chief Justice Warren Burger, chairman of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution. Arranged along a timeline format, Miracle at Philadelphia began with the British surrender at Yorktown in 1781 and concluded with an overview of the Constitution’s influence over the past 200 years. The bulk of the exhibit focused on issues surrounding the Constitutional Convention, including the power struggles between large and small states, the influence of regional economic interests, and the creation of three separate branches of government. The story was conveyed through original historical documents, including James Madison’s notes of the debates and James Wilson’s early drafts of the Constitution. The exhibit also included portraits, sculptures, models, audiovisual presentations, computer graphics, and supplemental educational resources.

Miracle at Philadelphia closed on December 31, 1987.

VOLUME 13 LF

DESCRIPTION The Miracle at Philadelphia Records consist primarily of the planning, educational, and public relations documents related to the exhibit celebrating the 1987 Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. Though no original materials from the exhibit itself are present in the collection, there are photocopies of documents and portraits used, as well as blueprints, transcripts, photographs, videos, and project manuals that provide insight into how visitors experienced the exhibit. Other significant groupings of material relate to the National Endowment for the Humanities grant that funded the exhibit, as well as the educational materials that were developed in conjunction with the exhibit.

The majority of the textual documents include reports, correspondence, newspaper clippings, notes, financial documents, and research materials. Photographic materials include prints, negatives, and a large number of slides. Audiovisual materials are primarily in VHS, Betacam, and one inch videotape formats. The collection also contains samples of visitor logs signed by exhibit guests in 1987.

Items in the Miracle at Philadelphia Records span from 1964 to 2009, with the bulk of the materials dating from 1984 to 1987.

ORGANIZATION Organized into five series: Series I. Planning Files, Series II. Educational Program Records, Series III. Publicity, Series IV. Photographic Materials, and Series V. Audiovisual Materials

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

I. SERIES I. PLANNING RECORDS, 1975-2009, undated

Divided into four subseries: Subseries A: Background Information and Research Records; Subseries B: Exhibit Design and Content Records; Subseries C: Financial Records; and Subseries D. Records of Affiliated Organizations.

The largest series in the collection, these records provide evidence of the detailed planning that led to Miracle at Philadelphia. Mostly dating from 1985 to 1987, materials include grant applications, correspondence, photographs, blueprints, reports, research materials, and clippings.

A. SUBSERIES A. BACKGROUND INFORMATION AND RESEARCH RECORDS, 1975-2009, undated

Arranged alphabetically.

This subseries contains overviews and summaries of Miracle at Philadelphia, lists of items borrowed, early interpretation ideas, outlines of the exhibit planning stages, and biographical information about project director Peggy Duckett. It also includes research on the evolution and impact of the Constitution, the convention delegates, and graphics used in the exhibit. Specific materials include articles, correspondence, meeting minutes, notes, and reports.

B. SUBSERIES B. EXHIBIT DESIGN AND CONTENT RECORDS, 1981-1991, undated

Arranged alphabetically.

This subseries documents the exhibit layout, graphics, texts, presentation scripts, construction details, and contributions of contractors Krent/Paffett Associates, Charles M. Maltbie Associates, and American History Workshop. Files on specific sections of the exhibit include object worksheets describing documents displayed and themes explored. The subseries contains evidence of the modifications and improvements made to the exhibit after installation, as well as the potential re-installation at Constitution Hall in Washington, DC in 1989. Additional materials include visitor logs, blueprints, photographs, pamphlets, and project manuals.

C. SUBSERIES C. FINANCIAL RECORDS, 1982-1988

Arranged alphabetically.

This subseries mostly documents the National Endowment for the Humanities grant process that led to funding for Miracle at Philadelphia. Additional financial records include contracts, budget statements, and insurance valuations for items loaned to FINHP for the exhibit.

D. SUBSERIES D. RECORDS RELATING TO AFFILIATED ORGANIZATIONS, 1976-1989, undated

Arranged alphabetically by name of organization.

This subseries contains information about organizations also celebrating the Constitution bicentennial in 1987, most notably the “We the People 200 Committee,” and the Pennsylvania and National Commissions on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

II. SERIES II. EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM RECORDS, 1964-1991

Arranged alphabetically.

This series contains the education materials developed in conjunction with the exhibit, including a map of Philadelphia in 1787, a classroom activity guide, essays by historian Jack Greene about the constitutional era, and trading cards featuring the 55 convention delegates. It also includes background information on Constitution related curricula used as reference to create educational resources.

III. SERIES III. PUBLICITY, 1981-1989, undated

Arranged alphabetically.

This series documents public relations, articles, tours, and other outreach efforts to promote Miracle at Philadelphia. Many of these relate to the opening of the exhibit in September, 1986. Materials include press releases, clippings, brochures, correspondence, and mailing lists.

IV. SERIES IV. PHOTOGRAPHIC MATERIALS, 1985-1989, undated

Arranged alphabetically.

This series contains slides, negatives, and prints of graphics and portraits used in the exhibit, as well as photographs of an opening night event, and various shots of the exhibit. The bulk of the series consists of slides from the presentations “The Sound of the Debates” and “The Delegates of Philadelphia.”

V. SERIES V. AUDIOVISUAL MATERIALS, 1986-1987, 1994

Arranged by format.

This series contains video in VHS, Betacam, one inch videotape reels, and U-Matic formats, many of which were produced by E.J. Stewart, Inc. The videos contain informal walkthroughs of the exhibit, short news segments, interviews with project director Peggy Duckett and historian David Kimball, and media coverage of events surrounding the opening of Miracle at Philadelphia. This includes coverage of the Philadelphia Lesbian and Gay Task Force protest of Warren Burger, who was present at the exhibit opening. The series also contains a copy of a video presentation featured in the exhibit depicting the drafting stages of the Constitutional Convention.
