In 1916, the National Park Service was created to protect unique and often threatened resources for the enjoyment of current visitors and future generations. Today, 409 National Park Service areas share America's treasures with millions of visitors every year.

2016

National Park Service CENTENNIAL

NPS.GOV

The National Park Service Centennial in 2016 gives us all a chance to celebrate where we've been and what we've done in our first 100 years. It's also an opportunity to welcome new generations of visitors, volunteers, and stewards to join those of us who've already discovered the joy of finding our parks. There's a special place for everyone in those 409 National Park Services areas: a place that will connect you with your past, touch your heart, or fill you with wonder. Find your park and join the adventure at nps.gov/2016.
