What John. F. Kennedy means to Me

by Elias Norton

John. F. Kennedy was born in Massachusetts on May 29, 1917 and lived in Brookline, Mass. When he was a young boy he was very sick a lot of the time. He grew up and went to Harvard University. Later he fought in World War II, and became the 35th president of the United States.

J.F.K showed courage throughout his life. J.F.k's Ship the Pt-109 got cut in half by a japanese destroyer. He swam three miles to shore with one of his men on his back. J.F.K also showed courage when he was a boy fighting illness.

I think J.F.K and I have a lot in common. When we were young both of us were sick. When I was five I found out I had cancer. I spent that year in the hospital fighting the cancer. The medicine gave me a lot of stomach pain, back pain and head aches. I had to get shots in my stomach and stitches in my chest, and ten brain scans every month. Like J.F.k, being sick was really hard for me. Now I'm healthy and I feel much better. J.F.K. reminds me to be strong and brave.
