John Fitzgerald Kennedy was one of nine children of Joseph P. Kennedy. J.F.K never gave up and worked hard to impress his father. Second place was not enough. For Jack everyone plays hard to win. J.F.K is still important ~~cause~~ because he taught us many lessons like work hard, never give up and stand for what you believe in.

One reason how J.F.K worked hard is because he tried really hard to stop segregation and J.F.K did a excellent job. One reason why he never gave up he always tries to impress his father so he can be in first place which his father loves most about. One reason why he stood up for what he believed in is because he was the first catholic president in America. J.F.K taught us good lessons. J.F.K inspired people to be good people. He thought that congress should change. J.F.K spoke for his country. He thought that people all around the world should be free.

I hope to be more like J.F.K cause he did many great things. J.F.K faced alot of challenges like J.F.K's illnesses a his horrible back pain, when he was bike riding. I try to work hard and not give up. J.F.k had inspired me to be a better person.
