

The Importance of JFK

JFK was as competitive as a soccer player in the World Cup Final.
He and his big, strong brother Joe Jr. were playing chicken on their bikes and Jack would not let Joe win.
Jack teaches us to think things over before saying “yes” to something that may be dangerous.

JFK was as courteous as a gentleman pulling out a chair for a lady.
He was very confident and polite when he answered his mother’s questions at dinner.
He teaches us to always be ready with an opinion about something in case you’re asked.

JFK was as determined as a snail trying to go across Boston’s Public Garden.
His boat was sunk and he swam for five hours to safety with a hurt crew member on his back.
He teaches us that if you work hard and want to do something, you’ll often succeed.

JFK was as peaceful as a deer in a field.
He stopped the Russians from putting missiles in Cuba during the Cuban Missile Crisis.
He teaches us that it is better to use persuasion than force.

JFK was as adventurous as an explorer looking for gold.
He wanted to put a man on the moon before the Soviet Union.
JFK teaches us to play to win. Second place is not good enough.

JFK was as fair as a judge in a courtroom.
He believed that blacks and whites should have equal rights.
JFK teaches us that we have to be fair to all people, no matter how they look.
