

Parking Lot to Visitor Center

Today I am Visiting the Lincoln Home National Historic Site.

When I get there, we will park our car in the parking lot. There might be a lot of cars if it is busy.

When we get out of the car, we will go inside the Visitor Center to pay for our parking and get tour tickets!

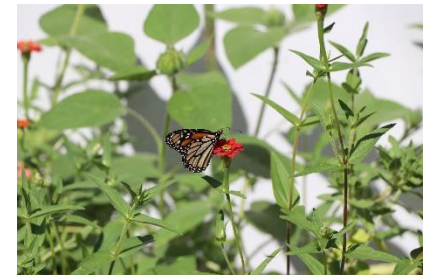

I can follow the green footprints on the ground if I want to. I will need to be sure to look both ways before walking in the parking lot.

There might be a lot of people on the way to the Visitor Center if it is busy. There might even be plants and animals!

But I should not touch them. They will not hurt me, and I will not hurt them.

Visitor Center

When we get inside the Visitor Center, there might be a lot of loud people if it is busy.

I will hear people talking, a movie playing, and a ticket printer buzzing.

When we get our tour tickets, we may have to wait a little while before our tour begins. But there are plenty of fun things to do in the meantime!

In the Visitor Center, I can touch the exhibit on the wall that says, "Please Touch!"

I can look at the map in the center of the room.

I can look at the items in the gift shop. I should be careful not to touch anything that might break.

I can watch a movie in Theater 1 or 2.

I can check out the historic neighborhood!

Visitor Center to Lincoln Home Benches

When we are 10 minutes away from our tour time, we should meet at the black park benches that are in the center of the neighborhood. There may be lots of people there, so I might have to stand instead of sitting on the benches.

From the benches, the Park Ranger or tour guide will take us into Lincoln's Home!

Arnold and Dean House

Inside the Arnold House and Dean house, there might be a lot of people if it is a busy day. It may also be noisy with all the people.

I can look at the exhibits, but I should not touch anything.

Neighborhood

Outside in the Neighborhood, there might be a lot of people if it is busy.

I might see animals, like dogs or squirrels. I should not touch them. They will not hurt me, and I will not hurt them.

I should stay close to my family.

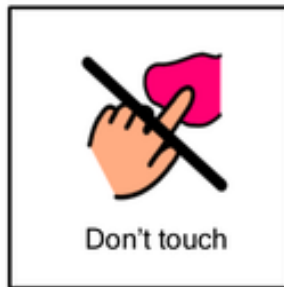

If I need help, I can ask a park ranger for help!

Inside the House

While inside Lincoln's House, I should not touch anything. The house is old, and I need to help take care of it.

Inside may be crowded and a little noisy. I may hear the front door shut loudly.

If I need to leave, that is okay. I just need to let someone know.

I want to leave

I should stay behind the railing's downstairs. I touch these, and that is OK. Upstairs I should stay on the blue carpet.

If an alarm goes off, it is okay. It will turn off soon.

I should use my inside voice and listen to the tour guide when they speak.
