RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The Privacy Act of 1974 (5 United States Code 552a) governs the use of materials that document private individuals, groups and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, research or teaching
- criticism or commentary
- as a NPS preservation or security copy for research use
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If the researcher later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the researcher is personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement and agrees to indemnify the NPS from any legal action as a result of the error. Permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute or prepare derivative works from the document without permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups or corporations whose name, image, recorded words or private information (e.g. employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law. This institution also places restrictions on the use of cameras, photocopiers and scanners in the research room.

INTRODUCTION

This document, the Guide to the Longfellow National Historic Site Building and Grounds Photograph Collection, 1855-1970 (Bulk dates 1870-1920), describes the assembled photographic materials depicting the interior and exterior views of the Longfellow House, also known as the Vassall-Craigie-Longfellow House, 105 Brattle Street, Cambridge, Massachusetts. It is the result of work by staff members of the Northeast Museum Services Center (NMSC) and of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA) in a cooperative agreement with the National Park Service. SPNEA Senior Cataloguer Mary H. (Pat) Perreault and SPNEA Cataloguer Emily Sartini under the supervision of SPNEA Lead Cataloguer Margaret Welch catalogued the collection in the fall of 2001 at the Northeast Museum Services Center. SPNEA/NPS Archivist Jennifer Lyons and SPNEA/NPS Collections Manager Melissa Underhill also provided supervision. Longfellow National Historic Site Museum Curator Janice Hodson and Archives Specialist contributed additional guidance and research information. The cataloguing was part of the FY 1999 and 2000 LONG Photos project funded by National Park Service Backlog Catalog Funds and by Fidelity Investments Foundation of Boston, Massachusetts.

At the outset of the project in February 2001, the majority of photographs were in two manuscript boxes marked “Interiors” and “Exteriors.” The Longfellow staff is presumed to have separated these photographs from the rest of the archival collections relatively soon after the National Park Service took over management of the House in 1972 in an effort to facilitate research on the House. The photographs provided much of the documentation and illustrations for the Cultural Landscape Report, Volume I: History and Conditions (1993) and the Historic Furnishing Report The Longfellow House: Administrative and Historical Information, Illustration, Bibliography (1999) (hereafter cited as Historic Furnishings Report or HRF). They are part of LONG-1, the contents of the House donated by Longfellow House Trust to the National Park Service in 1973. Due to the lack of information regarding the creation and original ownership of the items, it was decided to keep the photographs as an assembled collection instead of dispersing them to the other collections. A survey for pre-1972 images in the copy photograph files in 1999 conducted by SPNEA Cataloguer Lauren Malcolm revealed several twentieth-century interior, exterior, and individual object photographs thought to have been created before that year. As it was unclear whether the Longfellow House Trust or Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Dana (1881-1950), the family historian, was responsible for their creation, these photographs were incorporated into this collection. Additional photographs of the House came from accessions LONG-24, -39, -43, and -81, all gifts of Agnes Swift through the estate of Anne Longfellow Thorp, a granddaughter of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.¹

The photographs were rehoused in four-flap envelopes and placed in the corresponding 4X5”, 5X7”, and 8X10” boxes. The glass-plate negatives were housed separately. Oversize photographs were stored in folders and housed in 14X18” boxes. The collection was catalogued at the item level using the archives module of the collection management software developed for

¹ These accessions came after the House exterior and interior photographs were separated from the archival collections and hence were not included in those two manuscript boxes.

NPS – the Automated National Cataloguing System Plus (ANCS+), subsequently replaced by the Interior Collection Management System (ICMS). Each photograph was marked with a catalog number and an identification number based on the hierarchy in the ICMS database.²

In the summers of 2015 and 2016 the collection was the target of a digitization program with work carried out by Student Conservation Association interns Helen Lewandowski and Rebekah Kallgren.

Two new photographs, from accessions LONG-136 and LONG-176, were incorporated into the collection in 2019. This second edition of the finding aid was released in May 2019, incorporating these updates and corrections made during the 2015-16 digitization process.

The collection is divided into five series: Exteriors of the House, Interiors of the House, the Grounds, the Objects, and Related Photographs. The many images of the front (South) façade reveal little change from the 1860s to 1950s. The views of the North façade, in contrast, show the removals and additions to the house. The interior photographs provide a wealth of information into the objects and furnishings; the many images of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow’s Study (RM 113) may make it one of the best-documented rooms in an American historic house. N.L. Stebbins and Frank Cousin in ca. 1915 and 1917 respectively photographed many rooms. The Grounds photographs show mostly the Garden. The Objects series includes the copy photographs pulled from the LONG files. The Vassall-Craigie-Longfellow House provided the models for other structures; photographs of these “copies” of the House are in the Related Photograph series.

² For example, the ICMS hierarchy number 3008/002.010#001 is expressed as 3008-2-10-1.

Title: [Commemorating Soldiers Field.]

Description: Photo of serious-looking men and women in coats and hats standing around an object (a dedication tablet mentioned in the associated article) in front of a building. The trees are bare.

Date and Notes: This photo is probably from autumn 1923. On left side of mount that this image belongs in is an article written by Winthrop S. Scudder (class of 1870) from "the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, November 22, 1923." The article discusses the laying of a tablet "to record in outline the several tracts of land given to form what is now called 'Soldiers Field'". The article notes that HWL, in 1870, donated land in Brighton to Harvard College, and in 1894 land on the Cambridge side of the Charles River was given by Ernest Longfellow to the Longfellow Memorial Association. Also mentioned is that the City of Cambridge took some of this land in the 1890s for park and speedway purposes. The article includes the entire speech made by Henry L. Higginson on June 10, 1890 to present the land that he called "The Soldiers Field" to be used by Harvard students for athletic purposes, and his wish that a stone bearing the names of certain alumni be erected.
