The Lowell Folklife Series invites you to a screening of the documentary film Scenes from a Parish with a talk by the film's director, James Rutenbeck. Shot over four years in nearby Lawrence, the film sensitively captures the ethnic working class tensions of a multicultural Catholic parish in a hard-pressed former mill town. Come see this award-winning documentary and join the discussion about how communities adjust as neighborhoods change.

The event is co-sponsored by the Lowell Film Collaborative, which premiered the film to a sold-out crowd three years ago.
