

TREES & SHRUBS AT LINDENWALD

This estate was originally known as 'Kleinrood'. Martin Van Buren wanted to give the estate a new identity when he purchased it. One choice was 'The Locusts', after the Locust trees that dotted the property. He decided against this name because of an estate with the same name in a popular period novel by James Fenimore Cooper.

Martin Van Buren eventually chose Lindenwald because of the numerous Linden trees on the property. Lindenwald literally means 'grove of Linden' or 'Linden woods'. The Linden is also known as the Basswood and can be identified by the four to seven inch, heart shaped leaves.
