Douglas Squirrel

A close-up photograph of a Douglas Squirrel (Tamiasciurus douglasii) perched on a light-colored, textured rock. The squirrel is facing left, holding a nut in its paws and using its beak to crack it. It has dark, almost black fur on its back and head, with a prominent white stripe running along its side. Its eyes are large and dark, and its tail is bushy and dark. The background is a soft, out-of-focus blue-grey, suggesting a sky or a distant body of water. Some dark, needle-like foliage is visible in the upper left corner.

Tamiasciurus douglasii

Elk

Cervus elaphus

A young fisher, a member of the weasel family, is perched on a weathered, horizontal tree branch. The animal has dark brown, thick fur and a black face with small, dark eyes. It is looking directly at the camera with a curious expression. Its front paws are visible, gripping the branch. The background is a soft-focus landscape with warm, golden-brown and green tones, suggesting a natural habitat like a forest or woodland.
