Toomey's Mills in Weston County, Wyoming was listed in the National Register on November 13, 2008. It was listed for its local significance in agriculture, commerce, and industry. Unfortunately Toomey's Mills was demolished in 2012. The materials were removed from the site and modern construction currently occupies the site. As a result of the demolition the property has lost the significance for which it was listed. Therefore, Toomey's Mills should be removed from the National Register.
