

EXCELLENCE IN WILDERNESS STEWARDSHIP

Park Self-Assessment

National Park Service
U.S. Department of the Interior

Wilderness Stewardship Division

Background

The National Park Service (NPS) “Excellence in Wilderness Stewardship” self-assessment tool, developed by the NPS National Wilderness Leadership Council and Wilderness Stewardship Division, serves as a means by which a wilderness park may conduct an informal, internal evaluation of the effectiveness of their wilderness stewardship program. The assessment includes 25 key elements considered fundamental to meeting the NPS legal and policy mandates to preserve wilderness character. Parks are encouraged to conduct this self-assessment using an interdisciplinary review team.

The benefits of conducting this self-assessment include 1) identifying the park’s overall status of wilderness stewardship, 2) validating the park’s achievements and commitment to wilderness stewardship, and 3) identifying areas in need of improvement and actions to achieve improvement.

ASSESSMENT SCORE

[# of "yes" responses] ÷ [# of total applicable questions] = %

Did the park score 80% or higher? If so, congratulations on achieving the NPS Gold Standard for Excellence in Wilderness Stewardship -- keep up the good work! If not, please identify the questions lacking affirmative responses and consider prioritizing these in future wilderness stewardship efforts for the park.
