I support alternative "A," the environmentally preferred alternative and expect you to do the same. This national treasure was originally intended to be protected, and it should stay that way. Please demonstrate integrity be protecting our only marine wilderness on the westcoast next year as long as intented. There is no replacement for marine wilderness estuary found at Drakes Estero, and oyster can be grown elsewhere. If we allow these special exemptions, it could create a domino effect with other unacceptable corporate bodies damaging other protected parks.

I write in support of alternative "A." It is crucial that we preserve this area because of the numerous environmental aspects that would be affected if we do not, especially the notable effects on eelgrass. If the wilderness is not preserved as was promised 30+ yrs ago, it gives less value to the consept of preservation. Drakes Estero should remain as the ONLY marine wilderness on the W. coast, and it would be a complete shame to polute it for the sake of eating some oysters.
Not only is farming capable of being moved, it should not have been allowed to violate a preserved area. If one enjoys eating creatures from a preserved area, should we allow that area to be pillaged? Please, I urge you to be the voice of reason, and maintain that which was meant to be preserved, there is not much left to do so with.
