Digging up History

As an observant Junior Ranger you will probably find things as you explore the Park. It is important NOT to touch or disturb any objects that you find.

Things that have been left behind by people are called artifacts. Archeologists study artifacts to learn about the people that came before us.

Look in the Visitor Center Museum for Two artifacts that have been found in the Park.
(Clue: Look below "the Stranded British Sailor"!)

Write down what you find on the lines below.

1. _____
2. _____

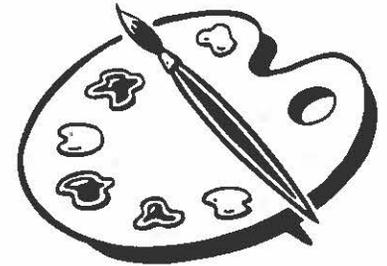

Where in the Park were these artifacts found?

How are these artifacts similar to one another?

Pick one artifact and tell how it might have been used.

Art-in-the-Park

Herb Kane is a well-known artist and historian from Hawai'i. Search the Visitor Center for THREE of Herb's original paintings and answer the questions below.

1. "The Arrival of Keōua below Pu'ukoholā"

- What kind of weapons are the warriors on the beach holding? _____
- What is Kamehameha wearing? _____

2. "A Ceremony at Pu'ukoholā Heiau"

- Is this an important event? _____
What makes you think this? _____
- Is it day or night? _____

3. "The Building of Pu'ukoholā Heiau"

- What is Kamehameha doing in this painting? (Hint: the warrior with the spear is watching him!) _____
- Who do you think the man in white is (on top of the heiau)? _____

Petroglyph Puzzle

Before the Hawaiians had a written language, they would leave symbols on rocks called petroglyphs.

Today we still use symbols to communicate!

Draw lines from the modern and ancient symbols below to what you think they mean.

Throw away trash

Information

Canoe

Recycle

Turtle

Whale Watching

Fighting Men

Hiking Trail

Now it's your turn!

Draw your own symbols for any THREE:

Spear

Whale

Shark

Car

Family
