James Blythe was called to Matthew Ballou's home (being used as a Union Hospital and a board met for the Union soldiers. This was off Charlotte Hill on 21st Hill. It was a 3-story place and a plantation with many acres. They did surgery in his hall and place a soldier down in his stable. He was with a tall thin man in a blue uniform. He was the Union Army Surgeon. He was with a tall thin man in a blue uniform. He was the Union Army Surgeon. He was with a tall thin man in a blue uniform. He was the Union Army Surgeon.

Great, Great Grandfather James B. Blythe - 5th Tennessee Cavalry - Yankee Soldier - 1/2 Indian

it joined in the pursuit, and was engaged at Hollow Tree Gap and Franklin; on the 25th at Anthony's Hill; on the 26th at Sugar Creek; and continued on into North Alabama where Division Headquarters were established at Gravelly Springs. Here the 2nd and 4th Tennessee, and the 9th and 10th Indiana Regiments constituted the 1st Brigade.

On February 3, 1865, the 7th Division was ordered to New Orleans, to report to Major General E. R. S. Canby. The 1st Brigade, as soon as completely mounted and equipped, was ordered to Eastport, Mississippi, for embarkation.

In the Mobile, Alabama, campaign, March 17-April 12, 1865, the 4th was reported in the 2nd Brigade, 4th Division, Military Division of West Mississippi. On March 23, at Navy Cove, Alabama, it was reported "only a portion of the 4th Tennessee Cavalry (about 450 men) have arrived at this point." On the same date, one company showed up at Barrancas, Florida, through a mistake in orders, and was ordered to rejoin the regiment. On March 30, a detachment of the 4th under Major Blackman was assigned to temporary duty with Brigadier General James C. Veatch, 1st Division, XIII Army Corps, near Spanish Fort, Alabama.

On the 31st, another detachment, under Major Stephens, at Sibley's Mills, Alabama, reported 14 officers, 260 men, 291 horses, 39 mules present.

On April 14, after the capture of Mobile, Alabama, the 4th, at Blakely, Alabama, was ordered to report direct to Major General E. R. S. Canby for duty and orders. On May 2, at Mobile, Brigadier General J. Bailey was assigned to command of the 2nd Brigade, 2nd Division, Military Division of West Mississippi, composed of the 3rd Michigan, 4th Tennessee, and 10th Illinois Regiments. From May 8-22, 1865, this brigade went on an expedition from Spring Hill, Alabama, to Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Lieutenant Colonel Thornburgh was assigned to command of a Pioneer Corps composed of detachments from all regiments, and General Bailey commended him highly, saying that he labored assiduously, and was deserving of special credit for his efficiency.

On May 27, the regiment was ordered back to Nashville, where it arrived June 13, 1865. On arrival it was ordered to report to Colonel G. G. Miner, Commanding Cavalry Depot, Edgefield (now East Nashville), Tennessee, where it remained until mustered out of service in July.
