

Papers and Working Files of NPS Employees in the NPS History Collection

As of 2/13/2020

The NPS History Collection contains non-record copies of papers and working files for over 135 past employees. These papers generally include copies of correspondence, documents prepared by the employee, reference reports on issue of significance to the employee, news clippings, photographs, and other documents related to the employee's career in the National Park Service. Generally, the materials reflect the span of an employee's career and, therefore, do not relate to a single park.

Researchers should recognize that these materials are heavily "self curated" by the employee before donation to the NPS History Collection. Most working files do not reflect a complete history of an employee's career nor provide comprehensive information on an issue or project that involved the employee. By their nature, these records tend to reflect projects or work products that an employee is proud of. Many have been further culled by employees as they have moved to different parks over time or after retirement, further limiting what was received. In addition, the volume of materials varies by individual.
