

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

Page 1

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figures Log

Klagetoh Chapter House Location Map

Klagetoh Chapter House Sketch Map

Klagetoh Chapter House Floorplan

Figure 1. The location of the Klagetoh Chapter House (diamond indicated by arrow) is shown on this map of the Navajo Nation. Base map courtesy of Navajo Nation, Division of Economic Development, www.navajobusiness.com.

Figure 2. Annie Dodge Wauneka attended the Albuquerque Indian School. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 3. Annie Dodge and George Wauneka were wed in a traditional Navajo ceremony in 1929 by medicine man Mr. Cut Hair (far right). George is reaching for wedding mush from the basket while Annie's father, Chee Dodge, is in the background. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 4. Annie Dodge Wauneka is shown here in 1954, during her first term on the Tribal Council. Courtesy of Laura Gilpin, The Enduring Navajo (1968).

Figure 5. Taken in March 1951 after the swearing in of the Tribal Council, this view of council chamber shows Annie Dodge Wauneka, near the center of the photograph, where she served as the only woman on the seventy-four-member body. Courtesy of Amon Carter Museum, Laura Gilpin, photographer.

Figure 6. During the 1950s Annie Dodge Wauneka's took her campaign to improve Navajo health to the airwaves with weekly broadcasts on KGAK radio in Gallup, New Mexico, sponsored by Pet Milk. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 7. Annie Dodge Wauneka attended the conference of the National Committee on Indian Health in New York in 1957. She is shown here with tribal representatives (left) from the Omaha and Oglala Sioux tribes and two medical members of the Indian Health Committee, Association on Indian Affairs. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 8. Annie Dodge Wauneka and other members of the Navajo Council Health Committee are pictured on a visit to National Jewish Hospital, Denver, Colorado (ca. 1960s). Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 9. A September 1959 frybread contest provided an opportunity for Annie Dodge Wauneka (right) to mingle with her people. Courtesy Cline Library, Special Collection, Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff, Arizona.

Figure 10. Annie Dodge Wauneka listens to proceedings of the Tribal Council in this 1962 photograph. Courtesy of Navajo Area Newsletter, February 1984, 1.

Figure 11. Annie Dodge Wauneka visits a hogan on the Navajo reservation in 1963 during a photo shoot for a planned Life magazine profile. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona, Carl Iwasaki, photographer, 11 November 1963.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSEPage 2

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 12. Annie Dodge Wauneka visits a family inside a hogan on the Navajo reservation in 1963. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona, Carl Iwasaki, photographer, 11 November 1963.

Figure 13. Annie Dodge Wauneka talks with a young patient in a corridor of the Fort Defiance Hospital, Fort Defiance, Arizona. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona, Carl Iwasaki, photographer, 11 November 1963.

Figure 14. In December 1963 President Lyndon B. Johnson presented the Presidential Medal of Freedom to Annie Dodge Wauneka for her efforts to improve the health and quality of life of her people. Courtesy of Lyndon Baines Johnson Library and Museum, Austin, Texas.

Figure 15. Councilwoman Annie Dodge Wauneka, ca. 1960s. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 16. Annie Dodge Wauneka made dozens of trips to Washington, D.C., to testify before Congressional committees on matters of concern to Native Americans. As shown here (ca. 1970s), she always wore traditional Navajo attire. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 17. Annie Dodge Wauneka visits in this late-1960s/early-1970s photograph with her biological mother, Mary Begay Shirley (1885-1972). Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Klagetoh Chapter House Location Map

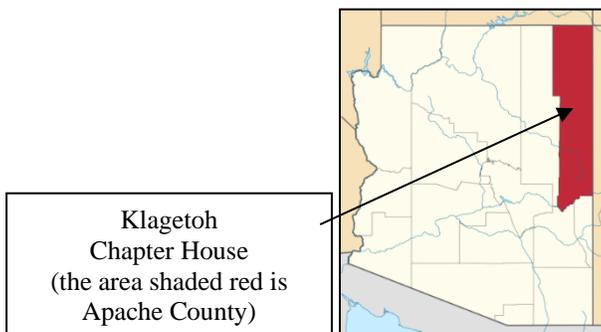

(Image Date: 13 November 2015)

The white rectangle indicates the nominated area.

Point	Latitude:	Longitude:
1	35.499759	-109.530379
2	35.499521	-109.530169
3	35.499272	-109.530597
4	35.499512	-109.530808

Datum: WGS84

KLGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Klage-toh Chapter House: Sketch Map

 Photo Location and Camera Direction

The white line indicates the nominated area. Numbers in circles are photograph locations with arrows indicating camera direction. Contributing status is indicated by "C" for contributing and "NC" for noncontributing.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Klagetoh Chapter House Floorplan

The drawing is not to scale. The building is approximately 75' on each side at the edge of the eave. A lowercase "d" indicates a door opening; a lower case "w" identifies a window location.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 1. The location of the Klagetoh Chapter House (diamond indicated by arrow) is shown on this map of the Navajo Nation. Base map courtesy of Navajo Nation, Division of Economic Development, www.navajobusiness.com.

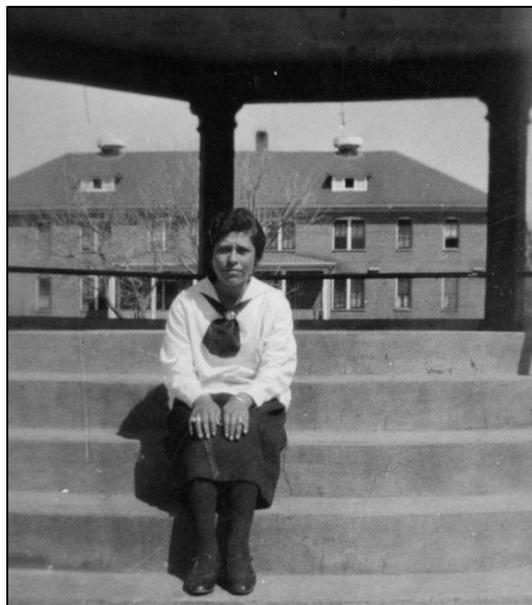

Figure 2. Annie Dodge Wauneka attended the Albuquerque Indian School. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

Page 7

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 3. Annie Dodge and George Wauneka were wed in a traditional Navajo ceremony in 1929 by medicine man Mr. Cut Hair (far right). George is reaching for wedding mush from the basket while Annie's father, Chee Dodge, is in the background. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

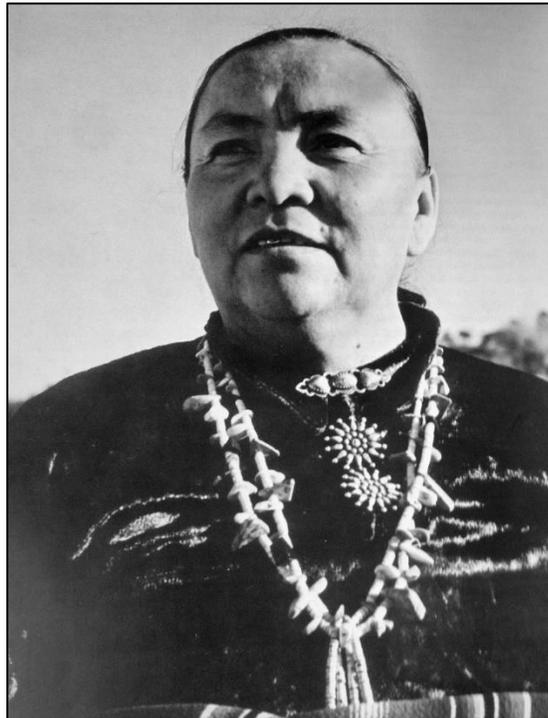

Figure 4. Annie Dodge Wauneka is shown here in 1954, during her first term on the Tribal Council. Courtesy of Laura Gilpin, The Enduring Navajo (1968).

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 5. Taken in March 1951 after the swearing in of the Tribal Council, this view of council chamber shows Annie Dodge Wauneka, near the center of the photograph, where she served as the only woman on the seventy-four-member body. Courtesy of Amon Carter Museum of American Art, Fort Worth, Texas, Laura Gilpin, photographer.

Figure 6. During the 1950s Annie Dodge Wauneka's took her campaign to improve Navajo health to the airwaves with weekly broadcasts on KGAK radio in Gallup, New Mexico, sponsored by Pet Milk. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

Page 10

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 7. Annie Dodge Wauneka attended the conference of the National Committee on Indian Health in New York in 1957. She is shown here with tribal representatives (left) from the Omaha and Oglala Sioux tribes and two medical members of the Indian Health Committee, Association on Indian Affairs. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 8. Annie Dodge Wauneka and other members of the Navajo Council Health Committee are pictured on a visit to National Jewish Hospital, Denver, Colorado (ca. 1960s). Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 9. A September 1959 frybread contest provided an opportunity for Annie Dodge Wauneka (right) to mingle with her people. Courtesy Cline Library, Special Collection, Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff, Arizona.

Figure 10. Annie Dodge Wauneka listens to proceedings of the Tribal Council in this 1962 photograph. Courtesy of Navajo Area Newsletter, February 1984, 1.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 11. Annie Dodge Wauneka visits a hogan on the Navajo reservation in 1963 during a photo shoot for a planned Life magazine profile. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona, Carl Iwasaki, photographer, 11 November 1963.

Figure 12. Annie Dodge Wauneka visits a family inside a hogan on the Navajo reservation in 1963. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona, Carl Iwasaki, photographer, 11 November 1963.

Figure 13. Annie Dodge Wauneka talks with a young patient in a corridor of the Fort Defiance Hospital, Fort Defiance, Arizona. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona, Carl Iwasaki, photographer, 11 November 1963.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 14. In December 1963 President Lyndon B. Johnson presented the Presidential Medal of Freedom to Annie Dodge Wauneka for her efforts to improve the health and quality of life of her people. Courtesy of Lyndon Baines Johnson Library and Museum, Austin, Texas.

Figure 15. Councilwoman Annie Dodge Wauneka, ca. 1960s. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

KLAGETOH (LEEGITO) CHAPTER HOUSE

United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service

Page 15

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

Figure 16. Annie Dodge Wauneka made dozens of trips to Washington, D.C., to testify before Congressional committees on matters of concern to Native Americans. As shown here (ca. 1970s), she always wore traditional Navajo attire. Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.

Figure 17. Annie Dodge Wauneka visits in this ca. 1970s photograph with her biological mother, Mary Begay Shirley (1885-1972). Courtesy of Annie Dodge Wauneka Collection, Irma Bluehouse, Ganado, Arizona.