Help us preserve the rich heritage of Southern Maryland by sharing your history of farming- and water-related activities with the Southern Maryland Studies Center and Calvert County Historical Society. Bring your photographs and written materials to this event to be scanned and, if you wish, make them digitally available to researchers. Participants will take their materials home or can donate their materials. In addition, you may display your items and share them with others attending the event. Search your attic and bring your treasures on October 20 to ensure that future generations can know and research their own history here in Southern Maryland.
