

A Silent Tribute

Vicksburg's State Memorials

Vicksburg National Military Park's 1800 acres embrace the city on the north and east. The beautiful green hills, with their earthworks, trenches and silent cannon, only hint at the pain and death suffered here. These silent hills do not reflect the complexity of the great campaign or struggle for control of the Mississippi River. Majestic seagoing vessels, ironclad gunboats, cavalry, spies and two powerful armies fought to decide the future of two nations. The hills remind us of the passing of time - gone are the people, both Confederate and Union, civilian and soldier. Gone too, is the roar of battle. All that remains is the cannons' whisper of pain and death. It is the towering monuments carved in stone and cast in bronze that give life to the names and faces.

One hundred thousand troops, from twenty- nine states, fought for control of Vicksburg and the Mississippi River. All of these states have erected monuments to commemorate the struggle - memorials to honor those who fought, and representing the admiration of a reunited nation. The inscription on the Pennsylvania Monument reflects this spirit of reconciliation:

*"Here brothers fought for their principles; Here heroes died for their country;
And a united people will forever cherish the precious legacy of their noble manhood."*

"In great deeds something abides. On great fields something stays."
